EDITORIAL BRIEFS.

BEWARE of Democratic falsehoods.

VOTE for Patton, the able and honest man

GOLD has been found in Massachusetts.

Vote for the Republican candidates, each one of whom is an honest man.

BE sure that your ticket contains the name of every Republican candidate.

THIS time next week General Beaver will be Governor-elect of Pennsylvania.

BENJ. F. HOWEY will be elected governor of New Jersey. That's How-ey do it.

THE Republican party is the workingman's party because its policy is such as brings good times to all. Be not deceived by the false arguments put forward by Democrats.

VOTERS, once again you have the opportunity to support the party that saved the Union, that has maintained good government and that takes the lead in every reform.

BLAINE'S welcome at Pittsburg Wednesday was as grand, enthusiastic and cordial as that extended to him at Philadelphia. It was simply prodigious. Fully fifty thousand people hurrahed until they were hoarse.

THE negligence and concealments by which pleuro-pneumonia has been allowed to spread its infection through the Chicago stock yards will entail losses running into millions of dollars before the disease is stamped out.

SENATOR MITCHELL, whose health is almost entirely restored, expects to be able to take his seat in the senate on the opening of congress. He took part in the great Blaine meetings at Harrisburg and Pittsburgh, and is deeply interested in seeing Beaver get a big majority.

A MAN has just been removed from the Chicago custom house whose greatest offense was that he was one of the men who helped to defend Fort Sumter at the opening of the Rebellion. This, to the Democratic administration, is worse than theft.

HEREAFTER Mr. Powderly is to have a salary of $5,000 per annum instead of $1,500. The salary of the secretary and treasurer have also been raised from $1,200 to $2,000. Considering the work devolving upon these gentlemen from the head down, the pay is none too much, but in such an organization there is danger of discord being engendered by these advancements.

ROBERT INGERSOLL, the blatant infidel, is afflicted with what it is feared is a fata disease—cancer in the mouth. Poor Bob! Eloquent, gifted, intellectual; he must pass from earth. Why did he use his great powers to attempt to destroy what men call sacred? But mercy is extended to him. Even now a patient and forebearing Saviour is ready and willing to receive and forgive him.

The Controlling Power.

We heard a Republican, for whom we have the highest respect, say, the other day, that foreigners rule this country. We, however, do not believe that, but are certain that the present ruling power is the South. Of the 401 electoral votes which are concerned in the election of a President of the United States, 153 are certain to be cast for the Democratic candidate. Hence, they rule that party and, through it, the Nation. Do you believe that? No Democrat will deny it. The Democratic party is afraid to do anything that will offend or alienate the South. Thus the Southern oligarchy has usurped supreme power.

What care they if they must work their cards through the Democratic tools in the North? They know that if at present an attempt should be made to elect one of their number to the highest position in the gift of the Nation, public sentiment would be too violently outraged to endure it. But they can accomplish their ends and exert their rule equally well as it is, and they are content.

Some people may object to being controlled by a part of the population which was recently in rebellion. The conquerors, they think, should have at least equal power with the conquered. Whether that objection be a tenable one or not, there are other objections to this condition of affairs which certainly can be urged with good reason. We object to the methods of the South because of what she is now rather than what she has been. The condition of labor in the South is but little better than the pauper labor of Europe. The South proclaims with a united voice in favor of free trade, although we do not believe that it is to her interest to do so. Her statesmen (?) are short-sighted and do not know her best interests. But it is a truth that wage-laborers in that part of this country, be they manfacturers or producers, do not earn more than one-third or one-fourth as much as wage-laborers in our part of the country. This low wage system the South is desirous to extend, as she desired to extend her slavery. We hope she will be foiled, if not in the same manner, at least as effectually. The voters of the North must rise in their might and unite in support of the party which favors high wages, a protective tariff and general prosperity. It is as necessary to do this now as it was to march forth in 1861 to defend the country. The present is a good time to show that the will of the North is in favor of protective union. A vote for Beaver, Patton and the entire State and county ticket nominated by the Republicans will be a fitting register of your convictions.

Wolfe's Pretenses.

Several times of late Charles S. Wolfe, the Prohibition candidate for Governor, has uttered words which show that he is not a candidate for the purpose of testing the strength of the Prohibition sentiment, but solely to injure the party with which he was formerly allied and which he now dislikes so much, merely because the party did not make him its nominee.

Last week he was going West over the P. and E. railroad when he was met by Mr. Wm. Foster, a gentleman well known in Brookville, Pa., and a conversation ensuing, the latter gentleman informed Mr. Wolfe that he was going to get a good many votes at Sunbury. "From which party?" asked Mr. Wolfe. "From the Democratic party," responded Mr. Foster. "Don't let them do it," said Charles, "Have them vote for Black. I am in the campaign to defeat General Beaver." Mr. Wolfe knew Mr. Foster to be a Democrat, which caused him to make this hasty declaration. But Mr. Foster is an honest man and it so shocked him that he has made it public. The above facts are found in the columns of the Brookville Republican.

BLAINE'S alma mater received him with open arms. She will never have a son of whom she can be prouder. The students who met him will have an incident to treasure in memory as one of the marked evenss of their lives. Whatever differences of political sentiment there may be it must be agreed that Blaine's will be one of the greatnames of our political history.

AT 7 o'clock on Tuesday evening, November 2, the Democrats of Pennsylvania will think that they feel an earthquake shock. It will be an earthquake for them as it will mark the end of their brief and blundering administration in this State.

Things to Remember.

Temperance people, Jno. A. Woodward voted against the temperance hygiene bill. He would probably vote against any other temperance measure introduced into the Legislature; Mattern will support every good measure. Which will you vote for?

Friends of education, Rhone opposed all the improvements which the State College authorities desired to secure for that institution. He has proven himself to be an enemy to the best interests of our county. His natural narrow-mindedness has made him vain and egotistical, and he apparently thinks of no one except Leonard Rhone. It is time to retire him. John G. Love, Esq., having a large, broad, liberal mind will legislate for the interests of his constituents. Vote for Mr. Love.

Between the two gentlemen, George M. Boal and Lew Shaffer, no one can fail to choose wisely. Shaffer is identified with the ring element of the county. It is said that he did not secure his nomination by those honest methods which men admire. Mr. Boal is an honest man, he was a soldier and has the interests of the county at heart. When you vote be sure your ticket contains the name of George M. Boal for prothonotary.

The same ring objection which we urge against Mr. Shaffer will hold good against Mr. Meyer. The same convention and crowd of Democratic roosters secured his nomination. On the other hand, the nomination of G. H. Lichtenthaler, Esq., of Philipsburg, was the choice of the best man for the office without consulting as to whether he sympathized with one or the other element. Let your ticket read, for District Attorney, G. H. Lichtenthaler.

Our personal knowledge of Mr. Jesse Cleaver enables us to state that he is the best surveyor in the county. This was also a most fortunate nomination and he should have the support of your ballot.

Remember all these facts. Vote for every man on the Republican ticket. This year is an exceptionable one in Centre county politics. Sometimes the Democrats do nominate at least one good man, but this year each one on the Democratic ticket is inferior in ability and manliness to his Republican opponent. There is no reason that one name should be omitted. This year every Republican voter can heartily support the entire Republican county ticket.

The Tax Bill.

Hon. Leonard Rhone said that he did not vote for the tax bill now in existence in this State. The Legislative Record refutes this assertion of Mr Rhone. On page 2432, Vol. II, of that interesting publication he is reported as voting for the bill.

It was perfectly proper for Mr. Rhone to vote for this bill if he wanted to, but it was very wrong for him to deny so doing in his letter published in the Farmers Friend and the Democratic Watchman. Is Mr. Rhone ashamed of it? Almost everybody complains of the bill and even Mr. Rhone criticises it now. He should have done that in the Legislature and then have voted against it. But what he does in the legislature and what he now pretends he did are two very different things. Come, Mr. Rhone, acknowledge the the corn and stand it like a little man. This, as well as several other actions of yours in the Legislature, will prevent the people sending you back. Mr. Love will succeed you. There is no danger that he would act so imprudently.

A Shot Gun in His Hands!

James K. P. Hall, the Democratic candidate for Congress, went to Lewistown on Thursday morning of last week, remaining until Friday afternoon. While in that place he was very actively engaged in doing what he could to further his interests, but he related one fact which is bound to do him much injury in his canvass. During a conversation with several Democrats he made the remarks quoted below. Responsible Democrats of that place give his words as follows:

"During the war I came near being hung over in my own county for harboring deserters from the Union army. One time I stood all night at the head of the stairs with a shot gun in my hand and defied and prevented a party from entering my house and arresting two deserters that were there."

The Gazette, of Lewistown, to appear on Wednesday morning, will contain the above and will proceed to remark: "Mr. Hall pretends to be a friend of the soldier in public, but when he gets to chatting privately with his Democratic friends he seems to take pride in what may properly be called treason. While Hall was defending the deserters Patton was doing all he could to aid the soldiers and those depending on them, giving large sums of money for the purpose. Which do the voters of this district intend endorsing next Tuesday?

"If any person doubt that Mr. Hall made this remark and will call upon us we will give them our authority and we know they will neither doubt the gentlemen's veracity or his democracy."

Political Assessments.

That the federal office-holders have all around been assessed for a particular sum for the expenses of the Democratic campaign has been well enough known and the payments in response to the demand have been prompt. The letter printed in another place affords complete proof of the violation of the law on the subject, which is as follows:

"That no clerk or employee of any department, branch or bureau of the executive, judicial or military or naval service of the United States shall directly or indirectly solicit or receive or be in any manner concerned in soliciting or receiving any assessement, subscription or contribution for any political purpose whatever from any officer, clerk or employee of the United States or any department, branch or bureau thereof, or from any person receiving any salary or compensation from moneys derived from the Treasury of the United States."

This act was passed at the second session of the Forty seventh Congress, when the Republicans for the only time in twelve years had a majority in the House, and it was approved by a Republican President. The law was accepted by Republican committeemen and Republican office-holders all over the country as meaning what it says, and it has by them been respected. Even before the act was passed nothing more outrageous than the demand of Collector Gerker's deputy was ever undertaken. It is of the stand-and-deliver order, which no office-holder can hope to escape and save his position.

Mere Imitators.

The Democrats seem to be content in the present campaign to imitate the Republicans in their methods. Do the Republicans hold a meeting the Democrats plan to hold a similar one in the same place. Do the Republicans plan to bring a gentleman into the state from a neighboring state the Democrats plan to do the same thing. Merely because Blaine came to Pennsylvania the Democrats are trying to induce Governor Hill, of New York, to come.

This imitative spirit which they have fallen into evinces a lamentable lack of enterprise and dash on their part, and their chairman, Mr. Hensel, is perhaps largely responsible for it. He does not seem to be capable to plan for himself. We should think that his assistant, Mr. Meek, would think of some of these things. A general spirit of discouragement and dispair seems to control the party, and General Beaver and the entire Republican ticket will profit thereby.

DEMOCRATIC Chairman Hensel violates the civil service law by collecting money from office holders for partisan purposes, and now Internal Revenue Collector, Frederick Gerker, of Philadelphia, has been caught doing the same thing, as is proven by the following letter, a facsimile of which was published in Monday's Philadelphia Press:

UNITED STATES INTERNAL REVENUE
COLLECTOR'S OFFICE, FIRST DISTRICT, PENNSYLVANIA.
SEPT. 29, 1876.

DEAR SIR: Contributions amounting to 3 per cent of yearly salary is expected from employes of the Internal Revenue Office, First District of Pennsylvania. Send immediately to

WILLIAM H. SCHOFIELD,
United States Internal Revenue Office,
Philadelphia.

By order of Frederick Gerker, Collector.

It is only necessary to add that Mr. Kerker is an officer of the great civil service reform administration, as is otherwise evidenced by his incorrect use of language—"Contributions is expected."

THE dissatisfied Democrats of the Twenty-first congressional district have called a meeting in Pittsburg for to-day to consider the advisability of the nomination of another candidate for congress in opposition to Gilbert T. Rafferty, endorsed by the Democratic state central committee Monday.

Corporation Influence.

The Watchman intimates that Mr. Mattern secures favors from the Pennsylvania Railroad Company. We can safely assert that between the two gentlemen, Messrs. Woodward and Mattern, the former receives the greatest number of favors from the Pennsylvania Railroad Company. Why should Mr. Mattern receive any? He is a merchant, and, as all know, merchants complain most bitterly of high freight rates on railroads. Unless there are competing lines merchants, in all cases, must pay the highest rate. But how is it with Mr. Woodward? He travels a great deal and is the editor of an agricultural journal. In that capacity he commands influence, and of course, he has a pass. More than that, he has been in the legislature, and is not known as one of the most scrupulous and careful members of that body. The railroad corporations have more influence over members of the legislature than over any other class, unless the members be honest. Therefore we think the allusion made by the Watchman is decidedly unfortunate—for its candidate. Only honest men like Mr. Mattern should be sent to Harrisburg. With many men like Mr. Mattern in the Legislature that body would soon become one of which every citizen might well be proud.

THE way in which the Congressional supporters of Cleveland and his policy have been hurled down in all parts of the country is not lost on Representative Tillman, of South Carolina. In a campaign speech last week he bluntly declared: "We made a very unwise nomination and election when we placed President Cleaveland in office, but now we must make the most of it." He thought that "the only chance of Cleveland's not being beaten at the next election is that Mrs. Cleveland may wish to say in the White House four years longer and if some good Democrat would only explain to her the situation she would make Cleveland do right. She can do it." Mr. Tillman is disgruntled over President Cleveland's dalliance with civil service reform, and he has his fingers on the pulse of the Democracy when he talks.

J. C. MEYER, Esq., who wants to be district attorney, has his beautiful features printed in this week's issue of the Centre county Times. Mr. Meyer is a beauty, there is no denying that. He is a nice young man, too. But we sadly fear that he is a member of the ring that has misruled this county for so long. With that conviction upon us we say that he must go with the rest of them. We are glad that he had his picture printed in the Times, for now everyone of his friends can have a photo of him for their albums. What a recollection it will ever be of what might have been but for that ring. G. H. Lichtenthaler, our candidate, represents only the honest, free, unbiased sentiments of the citizens of this county, and we dare say he is almost as good looking in print as Mr. Meyer; hence, we urge you to vote for Mr. Lichtenthaler.

I HAVE heard sermons on the responsibilities of mothers that made me tremble. While we accept our responsibilities, we say to fathers: You are not doing your duty to your children when you go to the polls and vote for men who legalize the liquor-traffic. You cannot expect us to keep them pure, when by your votes you open the doors of temptation to them.—Mary A. Livermore, at the Temperance Convention in Philadelphia, 1876.

PRESIDENT CLEVELAND is getting too overloaded with fat for his comfort, and it is stated that an expert in the massage treatment is going to try to rub some of it off for him. His corpulence has been steadily increasing since he has gotten into the Presidential office with its salary of $50,000 a year. The people will do something for his relief in 1888.

BARTHOLDI'S magnificent statue of Liberty will be formally dedicated today. The ceremonies will be imposing. The President will take part and numerous French dignitaries will participate. Then we will not only enlighten the world, but we will proclaim that fact to all who enter New York harbor. Remember that the best way to enlighten the world is not to dedicate a huge copper statue, but to vote the Republican state and county tickets.

IT indicates a curious state of affairs in the trade between Germany and France when a proposition to suppress the use of forged trademarks is regarded as a movement to shut German goods out of the French market.

A man just from there says the trees covering a mile square of timber land are literally as full as the limbs will bear, at night, with these birds. Millions of pigeons are there, he says, and at night when they come in to roost, they make a noise like a mighty thunder.

The grand object of many visitors to the fair, says a Boston paper, seemed to be the accumulation of as many advertising circulars as possible. They went about with their arms full, and one stout lady actually carried a market basket, into which she carefully laid any bit of printed paper offered her. Perhaps she collected enough paper to pay her admission fee, at least, to set her up in tin dippers for the winter.

Poetry.

LITTLE MAID WITH LOVERS TWAIN.

Was ever a soul so pestered; dear me, what shall I do?
I thought there were none like Robin, and loved him leal and true;
I thought there was none like Robin, but now that Jamie's here,
I look at Robin and Jamie, and both of them are dear!
And whether the old or new love wins, I canna tell as yet;
Alack! Aweel! I'll wait and see which way my heart shall set!

Was ever a soul so worried? I would na do a wrong;
But there is Robin and Jamie—I canna to both belong;
Yet, when a-walking with Robin, I think him the fine't lad,
And when Jamie comes a-wooing, I canna for long be sad!
And whether the old or new love wins, I canna tell as yet;
Alack! Aweel! I'll wait and see which way my heart is set!

Was ever a soul so beat about? I dinna, canna see
How that Robin and Jamie can both belong to me!
For Robin is like the sunshine, with eyes of sunny li ht,
And Jami 's like the darkness, with eyes of dusky night.
Yet, whether the old or new love wins, I canna tell as yet;
Alack! Aweel! I'll wait and see which way my heart is set!

Was ever a soul so badgered? Whichever way I turn,
Whether to Robin or Jamie, the truth I canna learn;
A many a thing in Robin helps to hold him near,
And as many thing in Jamie makes him as passing dear!
And betwixt the old and new love my heart is sore beset!
Alack! Aweel! I'll wait and see; I will na wed as yet!

THE FIRE OF HOME.

I hear them tell in far-off climes,
And treasures grand they hold—
Of Minster walls where stained light falls
On canvas rare and old.
My hands fall down, my breath comes fast,
But ah, how can I roam?
My task I know; to spin and sew,
And light the fire of home.

Sometimes I hear of noble deeds;
Of words that move mankind;
Of willing hands that to other lands
Bring light to the poor and blind.
I dare not preach, I dare not write,
I fear to cross the foam,
Who, if I go, will spin and sew,
And light the fire at home?

My husband comes, as the shadows fall,
From the fields with my girl and boy,
His loving kiss brings with it bliss
That hath no base alloy.
From the new-plowed meadows, fresh and brown,
I catch the scent of the loam;
"Heart, do not fret, 'tis something yet
To light the fire at home."

WILTING DAYS.

This is the time, this is the time,
When apples and pies are ripe;
And we gaze on the flowers etched with rime,
As we pull on the corn-cob pipe.

The summer has fled like a golden dream,
And the wood wears gorgeous hues;
And down in the meadow the lilied stream
Its usual course pursues.

The buckwheat cake will shortly bloom,
And the pop-corn soon will pop;
And a sort of an ashen chilly gloom
Will roost in the ice cream shop.

The campaign orator shoots his mouth
At the crowd with a vague unrest;
And the robin flies to the sunny south,
Where the earthquake builds its nest,

TWILIGHT.

The peace of God comes with the twilight
With faithful dew comes sense of rest;
All hushed are now the merry insects,
The cricket only sings with zest.

The clouds, too, seem prepared for slumber,
They cease their drifting to and fro;
A roseate flush pervades the heavens
As sinks the sun in golden glow.

All things attuned like low, sweet music,
Fall on the soul, the passions charm;
God's sheltering arm seems drawing closer
To hold through sleep our lives from harm.

Our Story Teller.

UNLUCKY NED.

[Continudd.]

They put up at a rustic hotel kept by a Mrs. Catherine Flynn, a lady of comfortable and comely proportions, who received her unexpected guests with a festive heartiness which impressed Irving favorably.

They lighted their cigars after ordering dinner, and passed out of the back of the house through a little kitchen-garden, at the bottom of which a line of still wintry sea crept up the velvet sands with a soothing gurgling sound. It was a fine frosty evening, and the purple heavens were studded with innumerable stars.

"I like the smell of the place," said Irving, with an appreciative sniff. "We have a good hour before dinner; let us have a brisk tramp along these silent sands and get up an appetite."

"No," opposed Heyland half fiercely. "What d'ye think I'm made of, man? To think that I could sleep one night in this place and not know if—if I am breathing the same air as she!"

So they turned towards Red Sands Road, which was not hard to find, being but an aristocratic continuation of the main street, ornamented with some dozen or so villa residences about fifty yards apart.

"Which is Arbutus Lodge? That is the question!" muttered Irving. "I don't see how we can find out in this light. I cannot distinguish the names on the gate-posts. Ah, here comes our man, the postman!"

"Arbutus Lodge, sur?" the man repeated. "Why, it's the very house foreninst ye sur!"

"Can you tell me," asked Irving, slipping a coin into the official's ready hand, "who lives there at present?"

"To be sure, sur! The present tinant is Cornalius O'Callaghan, Esquire, barrister-at-law, and agent to Lord Ellendale."

"Cornelius O'Calloghan!" echoed Irving blankly, "Is—is there no one else living in the house?"

"Oh, bedad, an' I never said there wasn't, sur!" laughed the man. "There's Mrs. O'Callaghan—I wouldn't be overlookin' her—and there's a family comin' as fast as ever it can. Look at the bundle of letthers I have for them. I think they must be goin' to give a Christmas-party. The compliments of the saison to ye, sur, and thank ye kindly!"

Heyland laughed bitterly as the man vanished.

"Don't be downcast, Heyland," urged his friend, though rather ruefully. "There may be a mistake in the name of the house. Arbutus Lodge, Laurel Villa, Cedar Cottage—they're all so much alike. Let's go back and consult our landlady—she'll put us on the right track, I warrant!"

Heyland made no reply, but moved towards the half-open gate and looked in wistfully. The house presented a handsome well-kept appearance, and was approached by a circular carriage-drive neatly gravelled.

After a few minutes' hesitation, he entered and walked up softly, followed by Irving.

On one side of the hall door was a large bay-window, the blinds of which were not drawn, and the ruddy light of a clear wood-fire bathed the room inside in a cozy glow, which was however almost immediately quenched by the entrance of a servant bearing a powerful paraffin-lamp.

"Irish interior—Christmas Eve—nineteenth century!" muttered Irving approvingly. "A very rich and effective bit of coloring indeed!"

He was right; the scene which met their eyes was as pretty and as pleasant a picture of domestic peace and comfort as one would care to see. The room was evidently a dining-room, for in the center stood a table draped in snowy damask, laden with silver, sparkling crystal, dishes of ruddy fruit, and vases of flowers and drooping ferns. The walls were a dull crimson, which threw out artistically the heavily-framed pictures hung with Christmas evergreens. A soft-toned square of Persian tapestry was stretched before the fireplace, on which two fair-haired children were playing with a kitten, while seated in an easy-chair with her back to the window was a lady on the coils of whose soft golden hair the light fell graciously—also touching tenderly the downy pate of an infant nestling against her shoulder. Irving flung away his cigar and turned to his friend, who was standing in the shelter of a shrub a few yards from him.

"We had better be moving, hadn't we? The sight of that comely 'spread' has made me feel uncommonly peckish, let me tell you. Stop, though! Enter the O'Callaghan himself! I must see of what stuff the doughty agent is made. A massive squireen, by the powers! He looks as if he'd enjoy his dinner. I wish he'd ask me in to share it!"

Mr. O'Callaghan was a stout middle-aged man of good-looking but rather vulgar appearance. As he approached the group at the fire, the children crept towards him and cuddled his firm legs with demonstrative affection; then the lady rose, showing a youthful and shapely figure as she held up the baby for paternal dalliance. He raised one fat forefinger and tapped the chubby cheek, whereupon the little cherub waved his mottled arms so jubilantly that the father suddenly seized him and danced him half-way up to the ceiling.

His late nurse looked on smilingly for a few seconds, then turned and fully faced the window.

"By Jove," quoth Irving, "Cornelius is a man of taste! Madam is decidedly the finest bit of furniture in the room. Delicate ware and no mistake! I wonder if——"

A heavy hand fell on his shoulder, clutching him with a painful grip; a voice he scarcely recognized, so choked was it with hoarse passion, smote his ear.

"Come away, come away; I—I can't stand it any longer! Come away, I tell you!"

"Hallo, Heyland, what's the matter? What has happened? Are you ill?" cried Irving; then, after a pause, as a glimmering of the truth broke upon him—"Great Heaven, man, don't tell me it's your wife!"

"My wife—ha, ha—my wife! I have no wife! Oh, curse her, curse her—and him!"

He staggered forward with upraised hands and white working face. Irving passed his arm swiftly through his and hurried him from the fatal spot.

Not another word did either speak until the hotel was reached, when Irving poured out a glass of brandy and forced it to the bloodless lips; at the same moment Mrs. Flynn entered, bearing the dinner.

"Here I am, gentlemen, up to time, ye see! A good appetite and a happy Christmas to ye both!"

With lurid eyes Heyland sprang to his feet.

"A happy Christmas, did you say, ma'am? Thank you—thank you kindly! This—this—is the—the—happiest Christmas of my life! I say, Mrs. What's-your-name, let's have some of your champagne, or, better still, a quart of your fragrant whisky—that's the safest brand, I guess—to drink happiness and prosperity to every Christian fireside in this blessed land to-night!"

Glass after glass he drained, without touching the smoking meats laid before him. His friend had not the heart to interfere; besides, he felt it would be useless. Consequently long before the midnight bells rang in Christmas morning the poor wretch was tossing on his bed, unconscious of his bitter sorrow and cruelly-blighted hopes.

Irving did not sleep much that night, but paced up and down the room next to his friend's, fearing he knew not what disaster, listening anxiously to the low moanings and feverish exclamations which came through the thinly-plastered partition.

When he went in to him the next morning however, he found him already dressed, sitting in a listless attitude by the window, all the fire of anger gone from his face and sunken eyes, leaving him a haggard picture of worn despair.

"How are you now? How do you feel this morning, Heyland?" he asked.

"I'm sober now," he answered dully; "and I want to get out of this hole as fast as I can. Irving," he continued, in quickened accents, "it's of no use, my lad; I can't enact the part of Enoch Arden, as I—I thought I could. It's not in me; I—I must be of different blood from him; I—I can't lie down and die, and I can't forgive her or forget her. The picture of her, as I saw her last night, standing in that rosy light, with the child in her arms, smiling up at—at—that sleek hound, will—will haunt me murderously—ay, murderously!—until the day I die. So—so get me out of this hole as fast as you can, or you may live to repent the day you—you—dragged me into it! When is the next train?"

"There's a time-table in the hall—I will look," Irving made reply, passing out.

The other followed him, and, crossing the hall, a small terrier ran before him; he put out his foot, and with savage energy sent the little creature yelping and limping into a corner.

"Oh, doggie, doggie, poor little doggie, are you hurt, are you hurt? Oh, why did you kick him so, sir? He did not mean to get in your way, and he's only a puppy—such a little puppy!"

Heyland looked stupidly down at the speaker, a shabbily-dressed little girl, whose soft blue eyes sought his face with fearless pleading reproach. He made no reply, so she stole away, the pup cuddled up in her pitying arms.

"Who—who is that child," he asked, as Mrs. Flynn hurried up to learn the cause of the noise—"that child gone down the passage? Is she yours, Mrs. Flynn?"

"Mine? Oh, dear, no, sur! My little ones has hair and eyes as black as crows, and cheeks as rough and as red as the gills of a turkey-cock. That little girl is none o' mine; she's just come down from school in Dublin to spend the day with her ma. I fetched her myself from the train; and I dare say she'll be called for when church is over. Gertie Heyland is her name; and a dear little maid she—— Goodness save us, sir! Are you ill? What's the matther?"

"It is only a passing seizure—he's accustomed to them! Don't be frightened, Mrs. Flynn; it will be over in a few minutes," said Irving, with great presence of mind, hurrying his friend back into the room, where he sank with a quivering sigh into a chair, covering his poor face with one strong sinewy hand.

"Enoch Arden, Enoch Arden," muttered Irving, with savage bitterness, as he stood, a few moments later, gazing with pain across the shadowless wintry sea stretched before him. "Enoch Arden! It's the most wretched, most beastly, disgusting story I ever heard in my life! Oh, hang me if I ever let myself be dragged into another domestic tragedy of the kind, if I ever let a fellow spin me a personal yarn again! Poor Heyland, poor fellow! To think that his life should be wrecked, his heart broken, by a yellow-haired jade like that—to think that he, the toiler, the sufferer, should have nothing, and she everything—even his child! I can't think of it. And now to get him off quietly by the 12:50 train. I have nearly an hour to spare, and that time I must spend in obtaining some particulars of that wretched woman and her marriage. He'll want to know in a few days. Mrs. Flynn, I guess, is the woman for me in this emergency."

He strolled back to the coffee-room, where the buxom landlady was busy with a dusting-brush. Propping himself against a window which looked out upon the garden where little Gertie, surrounded by Mrs. Flynn's apple-faced flock, was feeding a noisy gathering of chickens, he opened conversation, and presently by a skilful turn brought her round to the menage of Arbutus Lodge, which elicited a spirited sketch of Mr. O'Callaghan's political career and wily management of the Ellendale tenantry.

"Yes," said Irving, with well-acted carelessness, "he is, I believe, a clever sort of man. Has he been living here long?"

"Ever since his marriage, about five years ago."

"She's a handsome woman—his wife."

"Mrs. Flynn pursed up her lips.

"So the gentlemen find, I understand, though she's not my style of beauty. And I must say, and always will say, that, as Corney O'Callaghan gets his livin' out o' the counthry, he might very well 'ave taken a wife out of it too! Faith he might! They're as plenty about here as berries on the hedges—good-lookin' healthy gurls, and not a man to pick them up—five o' them at the Grange, three o' Colonel Sullivan's, two more at——"

"Then Mrs. O'Callaghan is an Englishwoman, I infer?"

"Ay—to the backbone! It's a case of 'no Irish need apply' ever since she come to the place, five year ago. Not that any respectable Irish gurl would stop in her sarvice long—for, of all the short-listed, long-tongued, pantry-pryin' mistresses Red Sands ever knowed, for all her sweet looks, she's the worst! Why, she changes her cook every month, and, as to housemaids and parlor-maids, well——"

Irving laughed cynically.

"And this," he thought, "is the treasure for whom Heyland is pining! I dare say, if Corney were consulted in the matter, he would pronounce his fate the harder of the two," he said aloud. "Is she such a shrew? I shouldn't have imagined it from her appearance. Ah, talk of the—— Ahem! Mrs. Flynn, why, there's the lady in question interviewing your children in the garden!"

Mrs. Flynn bounced forward with very red cheeks.

"Mrs. O'Callaghan in my garden! I don't believe it!" She burst out laughing, and then added, "Is that who you call Mrs. O'Callaghan, sur? Sure that's the best story I ever heard in my life! Why, that's Mrs. O'Callaghan's nursery-governess, a poor widow-lady of the name of Heyland, said to have known betther days! That Mrs. O'Callaghan! I wondher what Corney 'ud say to that? He's been accused of casting sheep's eyes at her, and she has to laive next month by madam's orders. In consequence people do say she's had pressin' invites to stop for good in Sandhills both from Doctor O'Leary and the High-Church parson at Saint Jude's, but that she'll have none of them, bein' a widow-woman after St. Paul's own heart. Not that I hold with widows not havin' a second chance——"

"Mrs. Flynn," exclaimed Irving, whirling her suddenly underneath a big branch of mistletoe hanging from the chandelier, "if that rascal Pat Flynn ever gives you a second chance, just you apply to me, and you'll find I'm your man." And, before the indignant, astonished matron had recovered breath from the unexpected assault, he was out on the sands, dancing a fantastic war-dance expressive of demoniac jubilation, she afterwards informed her husband.

"Keep your head, keep your head, Irving," was the young man's voiceless refrain—"keep your head, for you have a precious morning's work before you—that you have! You must break it to her and to him gently, softly, with tenderest circumlocution, or else Heaven only knows what may happen. As it is, by Jove, I do feel uncommonly nervous about the whole business! A hint too hurried, a word too soon, and I may drive one to Bedlam and the other to a premature grave! She looks precious fragile, and he's half demented as it is! Oh, Enoch Arden, Enoch Arden, you poor old ghost, give me a helping hand! I'm half demented myself. To think we took the governess for the mistress—the governess for the mistress! Ha, ha! But I must open fire somewhere; it would be too cruel to let them waste another hour of this glorious day!"

He hurried back to the hotel, and at the gate was confronted by Mrs. Heyland, who was leaving with her little daughter.

"Fragile, decidedly fragile," he muttered, "but wearing uncommonly well! To judge by looks, I should put her a good three years on the right side of thirty; but she must be more than that. And now to commence business."

He followed the lady, who had passed on a few yards, and, introducing himself rather nervously as a commissioner from Messrs. Coleman of St. Mary's Lane, begged for the favor of an immediate interview.

She bowed, without expressing surprise, and led the way back to the house.

"I had a communication from Mr. Coleman lately. I infer my aunt Mrs. Collison wishes for my address. Do you come from her, sir?" she asked calmly.

"No, madam; I come from—Australia."

At the word she lost her stately composure. Her fair face flushed, then paled.

"From—from—Australia!" she stammered. "You—you—bring me news, tidings—of—of—my dear husband, who died there many years ago?"

He bowed in assent, eyeing her changing color anxiously.

"You—you have come to—to tell me the particulars of his death? At last—at last! Oh, I knew they would reach me some day—some day! You—you come to tell me that he did not die as they would make me believe—die a death that would separate him from me—ah, Heaven, farther in eternity than we have been separated on earth! You come to tell me—to tell me——"

"That your husband did not commit suicide, certainly, my dear lady—certainly!" he replied promptly.

A SHARP LESSON.

"Twenty pounds for a picture frame! My dear Dora, isn't that just a little extravagant?"

It was almost the first remonstrance that George Carson had ventured to utter to his wife, for the glow of their honeymoon had not yet faded from the matrimonial horizon. But he was beginning to think that his young wife's ideas were a little too high-toned for such a limited income as theirs was.

Mrs. Carson turned toward him with a sad, moonlight sort of a smile.

"My dear George," said she, "pray excuse me, but you are quite ignorant of the subject! That picture which dear Edith gave me for a wedding present is a real Meissonier. One of the great artist's earliest attempts, it is true, and perhaps lacking in the exquisite finish which characterizes his later productions, but still a Meissonier. And no common or tawdry piece of gilding can befit such a gem of art as this. It will light up our drawing-room as a jewel lights up some dusky ocean cave."

So the expensive frame was ordered, and the Meissonier was sent home, encased in its splendor.

Old Mrs. Carson shook her head when it was carried in.

"It may be a gem of art," said she. "I'm no judge of such things. But I'm sure that your business won't support Dora if she keeps on at this rate. Your grandfather's picture that was done by a traveling portrait painter when we were first married, for half-a-guinea, was put in a plain gilt frame that only came to fifteen shillings."

"Oh, grandma!" cried Mrs. Carson, despairingly, "can't you understand that the world has altered since you were a girl?"

"Oh, I know that very well enough," said Grandma Carson, meditatively, polishing her spectacle glasses with the corner of her apron. "But I ain't altogether certain that it has altered for the better."

Grandma Carson, bless her kindly old heart, had many doubts and fears as to the way in which her grandson and his wife were beginning their career.

"Brussels carpets all over the house," she said. "Kidderminster was good enough in my day, with drugget on the stairs and oilcloth in the hall, so that you could scrub 'em up, once a week, and make sure you were clean. And Dora has got ebony cabinets to hold china and stuff, where I used to be satisfied with a wooden corner cupboard. And there are curtains strung up before every door, and fans tucked in every hole and corner, until I fairly ache to go and fold 'em up and put 'em away. But this picture business outdoes everything. What! New currant colored plush coverings for the furniture! Why, Dora, there ain't no earthly need for that."

"They must match the band of currant-colored plush in the picture-frame, don't you see?" impatiently retorted Dora. "Everything must be toned to the key of the Meissonier!"

Grandma said nothing. She only shook her head again, this time more vehemently than ever.

"I wish the Mezzoner never had come into the house," said she to herself. "I don't see as it's any different from any other picture."

Dora, however, thought differently. She "toned" the little drawing room satisfactorily to the key of the Meissonier, and then issued cards for "Wednesday evening."

"Not regular parties, you know," she explained to her friends. "Just evenings. And—and music—and literary conversation, and all that sort of thing."

Her husband looked doubtful.

"My dear," said he, "all that sort of thing, as you call it, costs money. And I'm not sure that we can afford it."

"Oh, George, don't be ridiculous!" said Dora, with a petulant shrug of the shoulders. "Afford! You are always thinking of money. A few slices of cake and a glass of wine or so—what can it signify? And as for my dress, I should have required a new silk this winter in any event."

Mr. Carson could say no more; but by-and-by, when the bills came in, thick as "autumn leaves that strew the brooks of Vallambrosa," his face assumed a worn and haggard expression—a troubled look that went to grandma's heart.

"George," she said, softly; "what is it? Don't be afraid of coming to grandma, my boy! It was me that bound up you first cut finger."

"Heart wounds are not so easily healed, grandma," said the young man, half laughing, half sighing. "But I may as well be frank with you. That Meissonier is ruining me. I wish to goodness Miss Lawrence had kept it to herself."

Mrs. Carson had invited some artistic friends that evening to look at her picture. With these came a famous connoisseur, whose manners were as brusque as his judgment was excellent.

"That a Meissonier!" he cried abruptly. "Why it is the veriest daub that ever was framed!"

"A copy!" cried Mrs. Carson, growing pale.

"A copy," said the connoisseur; "and a very poor one! It isn't worth the room it takes up on your wall, my dear madam."

Dora cried herself to sleep that night. In the morning, when she came down, the Meissonnier had broken its cords, and lay prone on the mantel.

"Dear me what a pity," said Grandma.

"It is the best thing that could have happened!" said Dora, bitterly.

That very afternoon sheriff's officers took possession of the house, and the family slept in dingy lodgings in a back street in Bloomsbury.

Dora went to her husband the next day.

"Ah, George, she said, "what should I ever have done without that darling old grandmother of yours? I may as well confess it all. I was just going to take a dose of laudanum and end all my shame and remorse at thus having ruined you, when she came in like a guardian angel, as she is. And, oh, she talked so beautifully to me—just exactly as if I were a little child who done wrong out of simple inadvertence. And she wants us to go out to her little cottage at Wimbledon, and live there. It's all furnished, she says, and—and"—with a little hysterical laugh—"there are no Meissoniers there!"

So the young couple went out to the old house on the edge of the common, and there they began the world anew.

"Dear grandma," said Dora one day, "how wrong an estimate I formed of your character when first you came to us!"

"You thought me a meddling old woman, eh?" said grandma, her keen blue eyes sparkling shrewdly through her glasses.

"But I don't think so now," said Dora. "I am so much happier here, and George hasn't got that troubled look in his face. And he is growing so sunburned and healthy."

"You are both of you contented, eh?" said grandma, knitting diligently away.

"Oh, yes; quite," said Dora, giving the old lady's withered hand a little squeeze.

"Well then," said old Mrs. Carson, "I will tell you a secret, there are two thousand pounds in the bank which I have been saving up for George to begin business again."

"Keep it there!" said George, promptly, "I am satisfied with being a clerk."

"And what does Dora say?" asked the old lady.

"Dora says the same," declared the young wife. "She is quite, quite satisfied."

Grandma Carson smiled. The lesson of adversity had not been in vain.

"The picture that I can see at sunset from this back window is lovelier than all the Meissoniers in the world," said Dora.

"I think so, too," said George; but in his secret heart he believed that the happy light in Dora's eyes was a fairer and sweeter picture still.

Drunkenness and Its Curses.

Written for this paper by "Humanity" to the Church, Temperance and Christian Community:

Take heed, therefore unto yourselves, and to all the flock over which the Holy Ghost hath made you overseers, to feed the church of God, which He hath purchased with His own blood.—Acts 20c., 28 v.

Christians, what are we doing to heed the above injunction? Let us reason together in a calm and considerate manner: Are we supporting the cause of Christ or the abominations of the licensed grog shops? Which are we doing? Suppose we look this important matter squarely in the face. Heed not the logic of Satan. Put political prejudice of the demagogue order where it belongs, and listen to the voice of God, who hath purchased redemption for us through the blood of his Son. For what will it profit a man if he should gain the whole world and lose his own soul? Do we aid the church of God when we in any way support the liquor traffic? We as a people have asked from time to time of our Legislature for the permission to exert our constitutional right to vote for an amendment to our constitution prohibiting the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors as a beverage, and we well know the result. Our petitions were cast aside, not heeded. Did not our Centre county members vote for the compensation bill for the express purpose of killing the amendment bill at the last session of our legislature? Examine the record and see for yourselves. And now these men are seeking our votes that they may again be seated in the legislature after violating our claims guaranteed to us by the Constitution, in the right of petition. The voting members of the churches in our county have the power to stay the hand of destruction. We know that the licensed sale of intoxicating liquors is the greatest enemy of the church, and it becomes the duty of the voting members of the church to send representatives to our Legislature who will heed our petitions and grant us our constitutional rights. We have men now before us asking our votes who are pledged to vote for the amendment bill, to give the people what they have been for years asking for by petition—not a compensation bill, but an amendment bill. Now, among whom are the voters of the church, temperance and Christian community going to make a choice? Upon you rests a great responsibility. The men pledged to give the people the constitutional rights can be overwhelmingly elected, provided you do your duty. But if you fail to do your duty, whose interest is injured—the house of God or the licensed grog shop? If the men who have already denied us our constitutional rights go back to the legislature it will be your fault. Remember, they cannot get there except by the aid of the church, temperance and Christian community. Take head then what you do. To him that knoweth to do good and doeth it not to him it is sin.

How Oberly became a Bishop.

Washington Critic.

The Hon. John Oberly, civil service reformer—beg pardon civil service commissioner—is generally known as Bishop Oberly, and the manner of his acquiring the title is rather amusing. It seems that the Hon. John bears a striking resemblance to Bishop McLoren, of the Chicago diocese, and one day a tipsy friend of John's overtook the Bishop on the street. It was John, of course, to Mr. Tipsy, and coming up to him he slapped him a sounder on the back.

"John, old man," he said, "dang your soul, how d'y do? Haven't seen you for four days. Didn't hardly know you. Come in here and let's have a drink. Best liquor in town right in this shebang, and he yanked the bishop around and pointed him toward a saloon.

"Sir," roared the bishop, "you are mistaken. I am not John, sir, I am Bishop McLaren."

Tipsy was sober enough to understand the gravity of his error, and he was so earnest in his apologies that he was let off with only a reprimand. He went on his way muttering to himself, slipped into one or two places and fired up again, and about an hour after meeting the bishop he met John. He went up to him at once, extending his hand.

"Bishop," he said, as straight as he could "I hope you'll excuse me for that bad break of mine awhile ago. I'm very sorry indeed that it occurred, and I wish you would forget it. You look very much like my friend John Oberly and being somewhat confused I made a natural mistake and—"

By this time Oberly had recovered "Why, you durn fool," he interrupted, "What's the matter with you? Are you crazy or drunk, or both?"

Tipsy looked at Oberly, put his hand on his shoulders, turned him around, took a back view, fronted him again, gazed into his face for a second and replied briefly:

"Both, and got 'em bad."

Explanations followed next day and the friends of the parties called Oberly bishop after that.

A Collapsed Romance.

"John do you remember when we used to swing on my father's front gate?"

"Yes, Maria, I do."

"And the moon used to look so beautiful, John."

"It did, Maria."

"And the stars were so bright."

"They were."

"I wonder if the moon is so beautiful, and the stars just as bright now as they were then, John?"

"I presume they are, Maria."

"Then why can't we swing on the front now, and look at the moon and the stars and the blue night skies, with their fleecy clouds, as we used to do then?"

"We can, Maria, if we want to."

"Then, John, let us go out to the front gate for awhile and see if it will seem anything like it used to."

"All right, Maria. You go out and try it awhile, and if you like it maybe I'll take a turn at it."

But Maria thought him too much of a brute to do anything of the kind.

Peculiar California Town.

A large town is growing up around the shore of Lake Elsimore, Cal., a sheet of water which is seven miles long and three miles wide. A peculiarity of the town is that the people go from street to street almost entirely by boat. In fact the principal street of the town is circular and can be touched by boat at any point.

Following the Trail.

"Here, Bill, take this candle and go after some coal," remarked a south side woman to her hopeful son.

"Never fear, mother, I can follow the trail by moonlight," replied Bill, who had been reading "The Bloody Avenger."—Pittsburg Chronicle.

Miss Jenny—"I will always esteem and respect you as a friend, Mr. Old Boy, but—" Mr. Old Boy—"Very well, I know the rest by heart. You women are all alike; no originality. You are the fifteenth who has said the same thing."

"How can I leave thee?" he gently murmured, as the clock tolled one. "Ask me something easy," she yawned. "Pa's at the front door with a shot gun and the dog's loose in the back yard," Confidentially, he went up through the coal hole.

EXTRAORDINARY OFFER.

To All Wanting Employment.

We want Live, Energetic and Capable Agents in every county in the United States and Canada, to sell a patent article of great merit, ON ITS OWN MERITS. An article having a large sale, paying over 100 per cent profit, having no competition, and on which the agent is protected in the exclusive sale by a deed given for each and every county he may secure from us. With all these advantages to our agents and the fact that it is an article that can be sold to every householder, it might not be necessary to make an "EXTRAORDINARY OFFER" to secure good agents at once, but we have concluded to make it to show, not only our confidence in the merits of our invention, but in its salability by any agent that will handle it with energy. Our agents now at work are making from $150 to $500 a month clear and this fact makes it safe for us to make our offer to all who are out of employment. Any agent that will give our business a thirty days' trial and fail to clear at least $100 to this time, ABOVE ALL EXPENSES, can return all goods unsold to us and we will refund the money paid for them. Any agent or general Agent who would like ten or more counties and work them through sub-agents for ninety days and fail to clear at least $750 ABOVE ALL EXPENSES, can return all unsold and get their money back. No other employer of agents ever dared to make such offers, nor would we if we did not know that we have agents now making more than double the amount we guaranteed, and that two sales a day would give a profit of over $30 a month, and that one of our agents took eighteen orders in one day. Our large descriptive circulars explain our offer fully, and we wish to send to everyone out of employment who will send us three one cent stamps for postage. Send at once and secure agency in time for the boom, and go to work on the terms named in our extraordinary offer. We would like to have the address of all the sewing machine solicitors and carpenters in the country, and ask any reader of this notice who sends this offer, to send us at once the address of all such they know, as space, or you will lose the best chance to get out of employment to make money. High License in India.

Early this spring Miss Willard sent to various mission stations a copy of the World's W. C. T. U. Leaflet and a letter asking the co operation of missionaries in our work of encircling the globe with temperance. She has received a number of letters in reply. The following from a missionary in India, is so valuable as showing the work of high license in India, that we have asked permission so give it to our readers:

We have had your petition translated and are busy circulating it. We have also prepared a petition, to be signed by the men, to be presented to the Queen. The better class of natives, the Brahmins especially, abhor the drink curse which is ruining this country.

Forty years ago this nation was practically a nation of total abstainers; but it is a sad fact that it is fast becoming a nation of a drunkards, and that under a Christian government, and brought about by license laws forced on us against the will of the people. I wonder if in this instance the government is restricting and regulating the sale. I think there could be no clearer case of sophistry, or, as some one has said, is not this a "wile of the devil?" The government sells the license of of every district to the highest bidder, and he, in order to realize the largest possible profit, opens liquor saloons in every town, and village, and even under the God-given "rest-trees" on the public road. These shops are called government shops and the people are urged to drink. The people know that the English government is a great government, and think that by complying with the request to buy their drink at these shops they are doing a favor to the government. The government officials know that whoever can fastest push this sale of drink and thus get to the government the largest revenue, is sure of the most speedy promotion. Large distilleries have been built by Englishmen in every district. The Brahmins point at these and say "Our kings never built distilleries they never licensed the sale of liquor." They wish that the people should be protected from such evils as the license system brings. We certainly have a fair example here of the proper working of the license laws. The effect here is not restriction, it is authorization emphatically. For this nation which only a few years was a nation of practically total abstainers, under the license laws is fast becoming a nation of drunkards.

It is true that heathenism knew of no such evils as Christian nations have introduced to us through drink. I like your idea of circulating a petition. With the one to be signed by the women I am also having one signed by the men, directly to the Queen.

I believe it would be easy to get the names of 50,000,000 of the people of India to these petitions. But if we were to wait ten years longer it might be too late, for too many of them might become fond of their cups by that time. I believe that the prohibition of the traffic, the manufacture, the sale, the import and the export will be the remedy for the evil. We have been holding temperance meetings for years, but while we have been trying to rescue one drunkard, the liquor dealers have been making ten. Is it sense to license men to start fires, and then to go frantic ourselves in trying to put them out? One villain could easily start more fires than a thousand good men could, by any means, put out. Several of our highest Christian families are entirely ruined by drink. One of our wealthiest men not long since, finding that he had become a drunkard, and feeling that he could not bear the loss and shame, threw himself into a deep well, and drowned himself. His father having become a drunkard also did the same thing. His brother is now dying through excessive drinking. The mother and sisters are members of our church, and I never see them but their eyes are streaming with tears. I state it as a positive fact, that in our whole field I do not know of a village where there are not some persons suffering in some way from this curse. The people here, almost wholly ignorant of the effects of drinking, become drunkards before they know fully what they are doing. It is true that the curses of these people rest upon Christian countries for forcing upon them the liquor traffic. They license the traffic, and while they are sending out one missionary, these traders, authorized, encouraged and supported by them, are sending out, 1,000 barrels of rum! May God open the eyes of Christian nations to see what they are doing!

Thanking you again sincerely for sending us your leaflet, and asking your prayers and aid in behalf of these people who have become so dear to us, I beg to remain, dear madam, with great respect, "Sincerely yours,

M. LEITCH.

Vodooville Jaffna, Ceylon, August 9, 1886.

Not Quite Yet, Thank You.

From the Boston Record.

A bargain sign stopped a procession of vehicles in Tremont-st, the other day, in an amusing way, opposite a noted dry-goods establishment. A woman whose weight could not have been less than 300, generous measure, rose slowly and majestically in her place in the street car and looked eagerly out of the window. The conductor marked the attitude and pulled the strap. The car came to a standstill, and the stout woman descended with much force on a feeble-looking passenger next her.

"Don't you wish to get out," cried the conductor in a rather irritated way.

"Of course not. I only wanted to see what that bargain in stock was!"

GENUINE MERIT

IS SURE TO WIN.

We believe the RUSSIAN RHEUMATISM CURE has real, genuine merit. It is this faith which has led us to put our money into it so liberally. We have put more into it than money—money could not buy the fair name we have gained by twenty years of honorable business dealing right here on Market St., Philadelphia, and yet so great is our faith in the Russian Rheumatism Cure that we are willing to stake our reputation on it as a safe, speedy and permanent cure for all Rheumatic troubles. Could we offer any better guaranty of good faith? Others besides ourselves have tested its merits, and add their hearty and unequivocal endorsement.

We send to all who ask it a pamphlet containing much of such testimony. And yet if you have Rheumatism why suffer one day longer than is necessary. It costs only $2.50 to be cured, and while you are making up your mind to try it you might be made well. The has saved every Rheumatic sufferer who has given it a fair trial. It is for you to decide whether or not it shall cure you.

Great Shakes.

CHARLESTON, Oct. 22.—There were two shocks of earthquake here to day. The shocks appear to have been as severe in Charleston as in the adjoining states of Georgia and North Carolina. Special dispatches received from all parts of this and the neighboring states indicate that serious disturbances covered a larger area of country than any previous shocks. In Charleston and at other points in South Carolina the shocks were enough to shake the buildings, bringing down loose plastering and wider cracks were made in houses than by previous earthquakes, but no loss of life is reported from any quarters and no serious damage to property. The custom house here was badly shaken, the western wing of the building being cracked and the walls supporting the roof on the west giving away slightly. The shock at 2:45 this afternoon is said to have lasted 30 seconds. The shocks caused no interruption to business, and although people were disappointed by the recurrence of this disturbances, they hope that the worst is over.

SAVANNAH, October 22.—Savannah was visited by two decided earthquake shocks to-day, the first at 4.45 a. m. This one was notable for the duration of the tremors which continued for fifteen or twenty seconds. Very much apprehension but no general alarm was caused by it. Many people, hotel guests especially, got up and did not go back to bed. At 2 o'clock this afternoon another vibration, accompanied by a rumbling noise was felt. It was equally as severe as the first but of much less duration. Many claim that these shocks were almost as severe as any that have been experienced here excepting the great shock of August last. They were felt everywhere in this section of the state.

From Alaska.

CHICAGO, October 22.—Lieutenant Frederick Schwatka was in the city yesterday, having just returned from Alaska. He said he was quite amused at the controversy of two New York newspapers over his discovery of the Jones river in Alaska. "One paper says there is no such river," went on the lieutenant, "and if there is one it is an old one with a new name. I am just going to try and catch the train else I would show you the truth of my discovery, but you can say that the Jones river is a new discovery, that I followed it for thirty miles, that it is not down on any record or map, but that it will be on every official map of the country and be recognized the world over."

Lieutenant Schwatka started out at the head of a private expedition sent out last spring for Alaska. The mission was of an exploring character purely—to make an ascent of Mount St. Elias, which is 18,500 feet high. He had a party of about twelve men with him, including Indians and all. Mr. Schwatka said that the expedition was entirely successful in object, or reasonably so; that they climbed the mountain to the height of 17,200 feet, and were prevented from going higher on account of the clouds. The snow line is at the base of the mountain, and several miles of glacier had to be traversed before the party reached the base prior to making the ascent. They were four days in making the ascent.

Mr. Schwatka said that the expedition will not be renewed. Comparatively little is known of Alaska except the coast line.

Rain from a Cloudless Sky.

CHARLESTON, N. C., Oct. 23.—People hereabouts are mystified and not a little disturbed over what they consider a remarkable phenomenon. On Thursday some one discovered that rain was falling copiously from a cloudless sky within very narrow limits. Two trees, standing at a short distance from each other, marked the boundaries of the rain-fall. The news spread and hundreds of people gathered to witness the strange scene and watched it for two hours Yesterday the rain-fall was repeated and the two trees again marked the limits of a similar storm. There was apparently no cause whatever for the rain.

There was no rain cloud in the skies and the weather was charming everywhere, except between these two trees. Of course everybody is talking about the strange occurrence, some even connecting it in an unknown way with the earthquakes which are still disturbing the South, but the theories advanced are theories only, and with no basis of foundation. No one pretends to say positively what freak of nature is responsible for the curious exhibition, and among the ignorant there is not a little alarm. The spectacle of rain dropping out of a cloudless sky for three days in succession has drawn better than a circus, and the two trees have become objects of awe to many and of curious fascination to all. Thousands have seen it and wondered, and the more they speculate the more mystified they become.

CHARLESTON, S. C., Oct. 24.—There has been no siesmic disturbance here since Friday night. There was one shock at Summerville to-day. It was scarcely perceptible but for the fact that it was preceded by detonations. One serious result of the shocks at Summerville on Friday afternoon is the general rise of water in wells. One case at the Summerville depot shows that the water rose 34 feet, and the general average was from 6 to 8 feet. In one special instance the water rose 15 feet in a well, remained at that height several hours and then fell 5 feet. Observations also show that water was extruded almost invariably from fissures or geysers made on the night of August 31.

To Reorganize.

NEW YORK, October 25.—The directors of the Central railroad of New Jersey have deemed it proper to state the circumstances to the stockholders and bondholders which led to the recent appointment of a receiver's interests on different mortgages. The company has been in arrears ever since the Philadelphia and Reading railroad company failed to pay the stipulated rent under the lease. Foreclosure suit was commenced and application for appointment of receivers made by the trustees for the adjustment of mortgages on February 14, 1886. The directors were hopeful that the difficulties of the company resulting from the insolvency of the Philadelphia and Reading railroad company might be tided over without a receivership foreclosure. They therefore requested a postponement of action on the part of the bondholders, and urged a joint effort on the part of both bondholders and stockholders to this end. Their request was complied with and Messrs. John S. Kennedy, James A. Rooseville and George C. Williams were elected members of the board committee. A board was subsequently appointed to make a careful examination into the affairs of the company and to take such measures as they might deem expedient for its welfare.

This committee unanimously reported in favor of reorganization with an intermediate receivership and recommended harmonious action between the directors and trustees of the adjustment mortgage in securing the appointment of receivers and in devising and carrying into execution a plan of reorganization. Their report was adopted by the board and pursuant to the recommendation Kennedy and Harris were requested to act as receivers in the belief that their appointment would afford a satisfactory guarantee to both stockholders and bondholders, that the affairs would be administered to the best advantage. The board hopes at an early day with the co-operation of the trustees and receivers to present a plan of reorganization which will involve the least possible sacrifice on the part of the stockholders and bondholders consistent with the reorganization on the basis of permanent prosperity.

Death of Mrs. A. T. Stewart.

NEW YORK, October 25.—Mrs. Cornelia M. Stewart, the wife of the late millionaire dry goods merchant, A. T Stewart, died suddenly this morning at her residence, Thirty-fourth street and Fifth avenue. On Friday she took dinner with Mrs. Henry Hilton, and on her way home contracted a heavy cold. On Saturday she was so ill that she was compelled to go to bed and Dr. Milnor was sent for. Yesterday Mrs. Stewart grew worse and Dr. Milnor remained at the house all night.

At half-past 2 o'clock this morning ex-Judge Horace Russell called at the Stewart mansion and was informed that, although Mrs. Stewart had spent a restless night, she was feeling better and was able to sit up in bed without any great effort. At a few minutes of 10 o'clock ex-Judge Russell was surprised to learn from a messenger that Mrs. Stewart was dead.

Will the South Penn be Built?

PITTSBURG, Pa., October 25.—The Chronicle-Telegraph this afternoon says it is stated on the best of authority that under the agreements now in existence a majority of the stock in the South Pennsylvania railroad will be controlled at the next meeting by those who wish for an early completion of the road and who will vote for the same. The authority states that the ten Pittsburghers who control $5,600 000 of the $15 000,000 of stock, all agree now as to the advisability of completing the road. In addition to this there is said to be at least five million more ready to go ahead. Stockholders formerly willing to sell now say that any further legal proceedings by the Pennsylvania railroad will be merely for delay, and they will object to it. They do not want to have their money tied up any longer in an unproductive shape. They say they are willing to put more money into the company in order to hurry things up and complete the line.

The Mutiny was Quelled.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal. Oct. 24.—A mutiny occurred Friday evening on the British ship Buteshire, lying in the bay near Mission Rock. The captain, in self-defense, shot and instantly killed a negro sailor, and then hoisted the police signal and surrendered himself and the two accomplices of the dead man to the officers of the law, who came off from the shore and reached the vessel about 9 o'clock. The mutiny was confined to three negroes, named Sam Callymore, Emile Joseph and Albert Francis.

Huns Not Afraid of Cholera.

BUDA PESTH, Oct. 26.—There is talk of making the delegations sit at Vienna instead of Buda Pesth, on account of the existence of cholera in this city. The Hungarians object to the idea on the ground that they were obliged to sit at Vienna in 1873 while a cholera epidemic was raging there, and also because such action would tend to increase the scare among the people of Buda Pesth and to injure the trade of the city.

An Old Man Murdered.

PACIFIC, Mo., October 24.—The dead body of Alexander McVicars, 80 years of age, and well-known in this vicinity, was found in a ravine near Pacific yesterday with two bullet holes in his head and with his throat cut from ear to ear. McVicars was last seen in company with a young man named Webster Jackson, who, it is supposed, committed the murder for the purpose of securing the old man's money. Jackson escaped and is still at large.

Joint Debate on Prohibition.

CLEVELAND, Oct. 26.—Hon. Martin Foran and L. A. Case, candidates for congress on the democratic and prohibition tickets respectively, had a joint debate on prohibition last night in Music hall. Hon. Amos Townsend, the republican candidate, declined to take part. There was a large audience, including many ladies, and both speakers were generously applauded.

Briefs.

PENSACOLA, Fla., Oct. 25.—Geronimo arrived to-day and is confined with 14 other warriors at Fort Pickens, on Santa Rosa Island, opposite Pensacola.

PITTSBURG, Oct. 25.—The state synod of the Presbyterian church adjourned to-night after passing resolutions favoring temperance and a constitutional amendment, and urging the ministers of the various churches to preach the duty of a more strict observance of the Sabbath. The sustenance question was discussed at great length and was finally adopted.

MONTGOMERY CITY, Oct. 25.—A destructive fire was discovered in the rear of A. A. Gordon's grocery store last night, and from there spread to Sherman's jewelry store on one side and Murphy & Kern's cigar store on the other. It destroyed the entire block, burning Bran Seller's restaurant, Johnson & Wolf's butcher shop, Knoefler's boot and shoe store, Fish's grocery store and Ferguson's saloon. The total loss is $14,000; insurance one-half that amount.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., October 25.—Chambers Miller, of Sewickley, holds the theory that natural gas is confined in the earth in a fluid state and he has just filed for a patent which is designed to conduct this fluid to the surface and into a receptacle for preservation. If this theory should prove correct, it will be the greatest discovery of the age, as the fluid brought to the surface and confined at a pressure, say of six hundred pounds to the square inch, can be utilized to an inconceivable extent as fuel. A locomotive, for instance, with a few gallons of fluid would have a supply of fuel sufficient to run it from Pittsburgh to Chicago, and an ocean steamer would require only a few barrels to make the trip to Europe.

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Oct. 21.—A special to the Advertiser reports that a mob of masked men in Pickens county went to the jail, overpowered the jailor, took out three negroes, charged with arson, and hung them to the limb of a neighboring tree.

BROOKLYN, October 22.—The Rev. Father Sherman, ex-priest and assistant pastor of the Church of the Visitation, at Red Hook Point, who recently created a sensation by renouncing his vows and marrying a young lady named Tillie McCoy, was to-day arraigned in a police court in this city, charged with seducing a young woman named Miss Julia Mulvaney. He pleaded not guilty, and was held in $300 bail for trial on the 29th inst.

A Reception to Mr. Blaine.

PITTSBURG, Oct. 25.—Mr. Blaine arrived here this afternoon from Washington, Pa., and was at once driven to the residence of Chairman Jones, of the national republican committee, Allegheny City. This evening he was tendered a private reception which was one of the most elegant affairs of the season, but on account of the trip ahead of him it was necessarily short. On Wednesday Mr. Blaine starts on a tour through the State and then he goes to New York.

Overcome by Gas.

PITTSBURG, Oct. 26.—A narrow escape from soffocation, with a sensational rescue, created considerable excitement at the Isabella furnace yesterday afternoon. Two Greeks engaged in painting the cupola were at work on a swing scaffold. Their position was a perilous one and dozens of persons gazed at them. It was noticed by a furnace man that one of the men had been motionless for some time, and he surmised that he had been overcome by gas. Several loud shouts failed to attract the attention of the painter. The furnace men quickly took in the situation and one man was hoisted up to the scaffold. He found the man unconscious, sitting upright, with one hand clenched tightly about a bar. To add to the horror of the situation the man could not be revived, and his rescuer shouted for a rope. His summons was quickly answered. The line was tied about the unconscious man and he was lowered by block and tackle to the ground. Life was nearly extinct. The man's limbs were numb and his hands tightly clenched. Restoratives were hurriedly applied and the spark of life restored. The Greek remained in an unconscious state for some time. When he recovered he pluckily started in to finish his work, but with a determination to desist as soon as he again felt the influence of the gas. Scores of persons witnessed the rescue.

Two Trains Collide.

DETROIT, Mich., October 24.—Last night a passenger train ran into an open switch at Royal Oak and collided with a freight train. Both engines were completely wrecked. Baggageman John Hennersy and Thomas B. Alexander were buried under the fragments of the baggage car and badly bruised and burned, the stove having been emptied on their legs. Alexander's condition is critical. John Smedley, fireman of the freight engine, was taken from under one broken cylinder of the steam chest, which had literally cooked the flesh off his legs, right side and arms. He will die. Nicholas Lamb, engineer of the freight, was badly cut and scalded. The engineer and fireman of the passenger train, who jumped before the crash, rolled down an embankment and were badly hurt, Engineer O'Dell having his shoulder dislocated and also being injured internally. Several others received minor bruises.

Visions of Rest Waltz by F. T. Baker.

This is a waltz played by the orchestras with great success, and often by special request at Long Branch, Cape May, Atlantic City and numerous other resorts, during the past summer. It will be found quite brilliant, effective and very pleasing and at the same time not at all difficult.

THE "WHITE ROW" BURNED.

A Fire Involving a Loss of Several Thousand Dollars and Causing Much Suffering.

Several years ago, while the car works were in operation, the late D. G. Bush, Esq., erected a long frame building just west of that institution. It was painted white, hence was designated as the "white row." It consisted of twelve separate divisions for families although very closely connected. Most of the time since its erection nearly all the houses have been occupied. Yesterday eight of them contained occupants. This morning at 3 o'clock a fire started in the cellar beneath the house occupied by James Solt and family. How it originated no one seems to know. There were shingles and other debris in the cellar, and a rat might have dragged a match there.

Mrs. Solt first discovered the fire and gave the alarm, and her cries were heard by George Miller. He hurried to their assistance, without waiting to dress and found that they were in great danger of being burned to death. He rescued Mr. Solt, who is a cripple, from a second story window, before he returned to his house to get his own clothes. The fire burned very rapidly and there is no adequate means of fighting fire at that point. All the people could do was to save themselves and only a few of them saved any furniture.

The houses were occupied as follows: No. 2, by Mrs. Jane Benner; then in regular order by Henry Derr, George Miller, William Barthrust, James Solt, Harry Wilson, William Fisher, Sr., and George Gross. Mr. Barthrust and family lost everything, they being away from home at the time. James Solt and family and Harry Wilson and family also lost their entire possessions, scarcely saving enough clothes to cover them Among the articles lost by Mrs. Benner was a valuable gold watch and chain. The other families saved a few articles. None of them had any insurance and all are very poor. The destruction of the house is entire and it looks as if it had been removed from its foundations, not a vestige of it remaining. The flames leaped mountain high overlapping other property near by which was saved only by desperate exertions.

These homeless people must be helped and they will be helped by the citizens of the town. Early this morning a subscription was started which now shows contributions as follows:

It is proposed that a committee be appointed to distribute this money. One thousand dollars will probably put the distressed people in as good circumstances as they were before the fire. A suggestion has also been made that the churches take collections for this purpose next Sunday or the Sunday following.

The loss on the building is about $3,000 fully insured.

SPECIAL MENTION.

We call the attention of our readers to the new advertisement of Brown & Hirth. We recommend them as being the leading and largest firm in their line in western Penna., and the only gunbarrel manufacturers west of the mountains.

Also having a full line of Sporting goods and Cutlery, Repairing U. S. Arms of any kind. Any one calling on this firm will receive prompt attention and courteous treatment.

Our Rapid Transitory Existence.

Brief as it is at the longest, liable to be materially curtailed by our own indiscretions. The dyspeptic eat what they should not, the bilious drink coffee to excess, and the rheumatic, neuralgic and consumptive sit in draughts, get wet feet and remain in damp clothes, and then wonder when ill how they became so. To persons with a tendency to neuralgia, we recommend a daily use of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, and always a wineglassful after unavoidable exposure in damp or otherwise inclement weather. Efficient protection is afforded by the pleasant safeguard, which diffuses a genial glow through the system, invigorates and tones it, and promotes nerve tranquility. Fever and ague, biliousness, constipation, dyspepsia and renal disorder, are among the maladies which it remedies and prevents.

Tonic, Alterative and Cathartic

Simmons Liver Regulator cures malaria, biliousness, dyspepsia, headache, constipation and piles. It is the most effective in starting the secretions of the liver, causing the bile to act as a purge. When there is an excess of bile in the stomach the Regulator is an active purge; after the removal of the bile it will regulate the bowels and impart vigor and health, to the whole system.

A STARTLING FACT.

It is not commonly known that a large proportion of the rheumatism and neuralgia extant is traceable directly to the diseased condition or imperfect action of the kidneys and liver; therefore a remedy which cures the resulting disease must have found and smitten the first cause. Many persons using Athlophoros for rheumatism and neuralgia have been surprised to find that chronic disorders of the liver and kidneys have also been greatly relieved and they have written for an explanation. The fact is, that the remedy acts directly on these organs, cleansing them from all irritating substances and regulating their action. Taken in connection with Athlophoros Pills this is, without exception, the most valuable kidney and liver remedy in the world, and will cure a large proportion of those who have these diseases.

Copake Iron Works, Copake, N. Y.

For the last five years I have been subject to severe attacks of rheumatism which would cause me the most excruciating pain in my chest; was obliged to put myself under the doctor's care for two or three months at a time, and even then it was almost impossible to get any relief. The last time I was taken my son was at home, and I requested him to call the doctor, but he said he had heard of a new remedy for rheumatism called Athlophoros and advised me to try it. I did and you can imagine my surprise, was relieved of all pain after taking one bottle and have not been troubled since. It saved me quite a sum of money, and what is better, I was not obliged to endure weeks of suffering; would not be without it in the house. Have recommended it to others and it never fails to give relief. L. H. PATTERSON.

Every druggist should keep Athlophoros and Athlophoros Pills, but where they cannot be bought of the druggist the Athlophoros Co., 112 Wall St., New York, will send either (carriage paid) on receipt of regular price, which is $1.00 per bottle for Athlophoros and 50c. for Pills.

For liver and kidney diseases, dyspepsia, indigestion, weakness, nervous debility, diseases of women, constipation, headache, impure blood, &c., Athlophoros Pills are unequaled. 9

Stray Notes and Political Paragraphs From Stormstown.

STORMSTOWN, October 25.

DEAR SIR: Since I wrote you last many changes have taken place in my once happy family circle—a change that leaves vacant a chair at the table, a place in the home. A kind mother and a loving companion has gone from us and the the tenderest ties have been torn in twain by death. Then, other matters over which I had no control have kept me quiet this long.

As for news, I have very little to give you at this writing; what would be interesting to your readers has already been reported and no recent event seems worthy of note.

People are busy husking corn. The steam thresher has come and gone. Dr. Tobin has been to Altoona to hear the magnificent Plumed Knight of Maine, and says his equal he never heard before. The Doctor will go to Philadelphia on Wednesday to hear the great Sherman, Ohio's favorite son.

Politics is gradually settling down to a fine point and both sides claim that they have their lines drawn and can count noses. The Wolfe men will act as a corporal's guard to attend the Captain's dog, etc. At the entertainments given here on Saturday evening by the Band of Hope, a young lady undertook to show to the audience how to cook an egg with alcohol, claiming at the same time that it effected men's brains in a similar manner. This was the first time I ever heard that men's brains were composed of albumen and water.

The Juniata mines are running only on half time because of the scarcity of water.

A Democrat from Patton township told me on Saturday evening that a few more speeches through the county delivered by Boodle Jim will have the effect of preventing the Democrats from electing even a District Attorney. Pass him around by all means, particularly to Scotia.

The Watchman must consider its readers very thick-skinned and short of memory. When the noble Hancock wrote a few years ago that the tariff was a local issue the Watchman said thumbs up, and now it wants everyone to understand that the tariff is a national issue. I do hope that the said paper will soon get a United States Senator elected for it has been cautioning its readers for the last ten years to stick to their legislative ticket in order to elect a United States Senator. Well, Mr. Editor, in my opinion, Mr. Rhone and Mr. Woodward need some help and that very soon, for they are in a terrible condition. All the Watchman's anti-discrimination won't hurt Guyer Mattern. Mr. Mattern's character stands above reproach. An excellent young man of superior business qualities, ever ready to extend a helping hand to those in need; always kind, generous, genteel and obliging—he will make a pure and manly officer of the law; one that fears no man and dares do right; a man who will not be swayed from the path of duty by bribery, or driven from what is right by bulldozing, such as comes from the Centre Democrat or the Democratic Watchman. He is a pillar in the Methodist church and a strictly sober man. No temperance voter need hesitate for a moment to cast his vote for Guyer Mattern, as he never tasted liquor in his life. As for the report that Messrs. Love and Mattern are not working together in unison, it is a lie of the pure stuff and I for one will vouch for it that John G. Love will run far ahead of his ticket in Patton and Halfmoon townships. The Democrats are down and they know it. Rhone has told that he is as good a Republican as ever he was and the Democrats on this side of the mountain wont suppor't him. No one likes the gay and festive Woodward.

Yours, etc.,

CORPORAL.

PHILIPSBURG, Oct. 25.

MR. EDITOR: Our town is prospering and is under the full influence of the Beaver boom. The Democrats had a meeting and a parade one night last week, and we judge that they had one man too many in their ranks, as Chief Burgess Munson had to put one out. Poor Brenno, you must not try to burn the boys' feet the next time you want to parade.

If you want to see a nice, clean and well-equipped hotel when you come to our town just drop into the Loyd House, now owned and run by S. B. Row. If you go into the yard back of the hotel you will see a beautiful green lawn—not hard walks and white-washed fences. Go down into the cellar and you will see one of the cleanest, sweetest cellars you ever stepped into. The side walls and ceilings of both bar-room and office have been covered with elegant paper and the wood-work painted and grained. The hotel is lighted throughout with electric light and its proprietor is an enthusiastic Beaver man.

A young son of Zeek Myers played truant from school last Friday, and it appears he not only played truant, but he also got to playing with a loaded revolver. The weapon went off and one bullet went through his hand and into his leg. At this writing the ball has not been found and he is suffering very much.

There will be a rousing Republican mass meeting and parade here on Thursday night, the 28th. Get up a special train, bring your torches and come to see us.

A full delegation of our citizens went to Altoona to see Blaine the day he visited that place.

Why not Erect a Y. M. C. A. Building?

The new glass works are now under way and the perpetuation of that useful industry is ensured. The car works buildings have not yet been leased for the purpose of utilizing them for manufactories, but we have no doubt they will be in a short time. Our citizens are doing so well that we feel like asking them to do something more. We know that all that is necessary is to arouse a spirit of liberality and enterprise and our little community will approach as near a heaven on earth as is possible to be made so by the advancement of every industrial educational and religious enterprise.

Now, when we urge our citizens to embark in business enterprises a very important consideration deters us. We know that they have so often invested money in that way only to lose it. But in asking them to contribute enough to build a suitable structure for the Y. M. C. A. no such objection stands in the way. For many years the Bellefonte Y. M. C. A. has been a success. It has been very useful and beneficial and perhaps much of the good name our town now enjoys is due to its influence. It is a truth that men in all parts of the country who have gone from the Association here look back and call it blessed because of the good it has done them. But, enough of this. We shall indulge in nothing that some may term religious cant on the subject.

What the Association wants is enlarged accommodations and increased and improved facilities. They should have comfortable reading, conversation and smoking rooms. There should be a gymnasium and bathing apartments. It is well to have lodging rooms for young men in the building. If made attractive it will more fully accomplish its purpose. Bellefonte can easily afford to build a $20,000 structure within six months from this date. Will it be a good investment? The Association is now returning compound interest for all that ever was spent upon it, and if this additional amount is invested it will continue to do so. Large interest is something that investors should grasp at.

The Association, with a good building, would be more nearly self-supporting than it is now. The revenues derived from the rental of offices, stores, etc., in the building would help this. Growing industries all about us will necessitate more room of this kind. Organize at once and erect the building.

No Competition Here.

The subscribers to the BELLEFONTE REPUBLICAN who pay up all arrearages and one full year in advance, get not only the best local newspaper in the county, but also, the Philadelphia Press one year free. Last week these two papers contained eighty-five columns of interesting reading; over one thousand eight hundred and seventy (1870) inches—as much as a good sized book—and the entire cost of all this to our subscribers was a little less than four cents. This is the greatest amount of reading for so little money ever offered to the people of Centre county. New subscribers who pay two dollars in advance, for the year, get the benefit of this unparalleled offer. For their two dollars they get one hundred and four papers, containing one hundred thousand inches of solid reading matter, without one line of advertising. And besides, they get many columns of interesting advertisements showing them where they can buy and buy cheap and good. In this we have no competition. No other paper in the county can make this offer. No other paper in this county can give the Press free. Hundreds have taken advantage of it, and hundreds more will. It is a "soft snap" and he who fails to "catch on" is not wise. An interesting campaign is at hand and the fullest reports from all over the State can be had here. The long winter evenings are at hand, and we offer intellectual food of unparalleled sweetness and great abundance—science, religion, fiction, politics, the world of fashion, the home, the farm, love, intrigue, war.

EDWARD T. TUTEN.

Letter Addressed to Township Committees

Below we publish the letter addressed by the chairman of the general committee of the various township committees:

HEADQUARTERS GENERAL COMMITTEE ON RECEPTION TO HON. JAMES G. BLAINE AND GEN JAMES A. BEAVER.
BELLEFONTE, PA., OCT. 22, 1886.

DEAR SIR:

You are hereby notified of your appointment as a member of the Committee for your precinct for the great reception to be tendered by the citizens of Centre county to Hon. James G. Blaine and Gen. James A. Beaver, in Bellefonte, on Wednesday, October 27.

Lost the Combination.

"Did you see the Butchers' parade?" asked the Snake Editor of a casual caller yesterday afternoon.

"Yes."

"See that man throwing sausages at the crowd?"

"Yes."

"Well, I never sausage thing before."

"Ha, ha, pretty good! I'll surprise my wife with that when I get home."

When the casual caller arrived at home he said to his wife:

"My dear, in the Butchers' parade to-day there was a man throwing sausages to the spectators."

"Was there?"

"Yes, and I never saw anything like that done before."

"Neither did I."

He waited five minutes for his wife to laugh, and then went out to wonder how he lost the combination.

His Choice.

A young man at the risk of his life, saved a beautiful young girl from drowning. Her grateful father, in a voice tremulous with emotion, said. "Noble youth to you I am indebted for everything that makes life dear to me. Which reward will you take, $200,000 or the hand of my daughter?"

"I'll take the daughter," replied the hero, thereby to get both the girl and the money

"You have well chosen," replied the grateful father. "I could not have given you the $200,000 just yet anyhow, as I have not yet laid up that amount, being only an editor, but my daughter is yours for life. God bless you, my children."

A. P. ELDER of the Literary Life, o Chicago, said on Tuesday that he was in receipt of a letter from his physician in New York certifying that Miss Rose Cleveland's health is entirely broken down and that she forbids her devoting her attention to the excessive labor of editorial work. Unless there is soon a change in Miss Cleveland's health she will spend the winter in the south of France or in Florida.

A Stranger's Innocent Blunder.

From the Albany Journal.

Many amusing mistakes are made by strangers who stop at boarding houses in Albany and forget the number at which they have engaged board. "In the vicinity of the Medical College," a telegraph operator said to a Journal reporter to-day, "are a number of houses built exactly alike. A few years ago a young "lightning slinger" came here from Canada and secured a night position in the Western Union. He wandered up to Eagle-st, and engaged board by the week. After dinner he went to take a survey of the town, returning at 6 o'clock for his supper. He had forgotten the number of his house, but, looking down at a basement dining-room, he was convinced that he saw the same waiter who served up hash to him at dinner. He therefore ascended the steps, placed his hat upon the rack in the hall and descended the stairs to the dining-room where he seated himself in a chair at the end of the table.

The lady of the house had not been called to tea and the servant girls stuck their heads out of the kitchen door in a manner that appeared 'flirty' to the youthful Kanuck. But thinking he was a guest of the family, in somewhat of a hurry, they brought out all the delicacies of the season. As the would-be boarder was leaving the table the mistress approached him and inquired whether he was a guest of her husband. "No, ma'am," replied the operator, "I am boarding here.' She insisted that they took no boarders, and he left, a supper ahead."

How Dr. Holmes Lost $100.

The artful manner in which the genial Oliver Wendal Holmes avoided a newspaper interview on the day of his arrival is an instance of the aversion with which he regards all newspaper reporters. Perhaps this is not unnatural when viewed in the light of the following little circumstance: At some noted gathering Dr. Holmes read an original poem which had never been given to public print. An expert shorthand man was present at the meeting in the employ of a Boston morning daily. Everything was taken down, including the poem, and appeared in the next morning's issue. The skillful stenographer a day or two after received a somewhat curt letter from Dr. Holmes, in which the autocrat remarked that while he commended the reporter's zeal he did not thank him for publishing the poem, as he had been offered $100 for it by the Atlantic Monthly

EDITOR'S TABLE.

MEMOIRS OF MY LIFE, by John Charles Fremont, with a sketch of the life of Senator Benton, by his wife, Jessie Benton Fremont, has been sent us by Belford Clark & Co., of Chicago and New York. The work is issued in parts, semi-monthly, at 50c per part. It is a work of deep interest to all, but it has a peculiar charm for those who took part in that memorable campaign "for free soil, free press free speech, free men, Fremont and victory." [though the victory just slipped from our grasp at that time]. The name of Fremont was a household word and Fremont was a household idol in almost every northern home. The story of his exploits was told at every northern fireside, and he was loved and worshipped as no other man has been. His life, therefore, cannot but be of deep interest to many, and it is a great use to all, for it is a part of our national history. The many fine private libraries in this town will be incomplete without the Memoirs of the Life of John Charles Fremont. Address, Belford Clarke & Co., 257—259 State street, Chicago, Ill.

Ringworm Humor and Salt-Rheum.

RAYNHAM, MASS., Aug. 12, 1878.

C. I. HOOD & Co.: Gentlemen— * * * * I have had ringworm humor and salt-rheum so badly that my body was covered with raw sores; so, also, my head and face. I have had any number of doctors in the last seven years, and none of them could cure me. One day my mother was in the city of Taunton, and found one of your cook books, and in reading it I found many people testifying to cures from the use of your Sarsaparilla and Olive Ointment. I felt forced to try it, although I had seen many things advertised that never did me any good. I have now taken two small bottles and one large one of Sarsaparilla, and used three boxes of Ointment. I now call myself cured. Nothing can be seen of the humor but the dim outlines of the sores. I shall take two more bottles, and then the cure will be complete.

I am gratefully yours,
EDGAR F. WHITMAN.

Biliousness, Sick Headache.

PITTSFIELD, MASS.

MESSRS. C. I. HOOD & CO.: Gents—Please send me by express two bottles HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA and a few Cook Books for distribution. Your preparation has worked wonders in the case of my wife, who has been troubled with sick headache and biliousness for years. She only took one-half teaspoonful at a dose, and has not been so well for five years as now. She found that within a week after taking it she felt very much better, and is now entirely free from those severe headaches. She has not taken any of any account since last spring, and what little she had is lent to do some others some good, and we must have it in the house.

Yours truly,
HOMER B. NASH.

The Convention Closes

RICHMOND, Va., Oct. 20. There were about 300 delegates in the Knights of Labor Convention Hall at 9 o'clock this morning when the body was called to order, and between fifty and one hundred more were packing their baggage in readiness to leave the city immediately upon adjournment or were aimlessly wandering around the city, viewing the crowds of the marching military companies here to attend the State Fair, which opened at 8 o'clock. There is not the interest in the closing proceedings which characterized the opening of the convention. In fact the interest has been decreased since the election of officers, which is always the crowning act of the convention.

Better feeling prevails as the final adjournment approaches. There is nothing of general importance fixed for consideration. The expiring hours will be consumed in passing upon routine matters unless something is called up out of the regular order. The subjects of greatest interest to the Knights and people of the country have been referred to committees or the Executive Board, and will not be determined until the next convention, which will be held at Minneapolis a year hence.

The first business taken up this morning was the report of the standing committee on co operation. After that came the reports of half a dozen special committees. One of these was that from the Committee on Woman's Work. Among the recommendations it presented to the Assembly was one in favor of the appointment of a woman who should report on all subjects connected with female wage workers, and aid in the organization of local assemblies of women employed in the various industries throughout the country.

Mr. Powderly and the members of the executive board will remain here until to-morrow, and then go to Philadelphia.

The General Assembly adjourned sine die at the close of the afternoon session.

Many Fires.

DUNSVILLE, Dakota, October 20.—A terrible fire has been raging for the last ten days in the mountains and on the prairies. Careful estimates place the amount of prairie and timber land burned at 192,000 acres. Never before in the history of the Turtle mountains has so destructive a fire been known. Thousands of tons of hay have been destroyed, also houses, barns, crops and stock. Many settlers lost all their property. The mountain towns narrowly escaped destruction, Bottineau only being saved by the strenuous efforts of its citizens. St. John also had a narrow call, but escaped without the loss of a building. One day last week business at that place was entirely suspended, every citizen being engaged in fighting the flames which surrounded the town with a wall of fire. It is believed the total loss will not fall far short of a million dollars, as the burned district embraced some of the finest timber land in the territory.

DAYTON, O., Oct. 20.—A line of fire is sweeping over the Copley swamps, west of here. The smoke therefrom is hanging over the city, and the country is illuminated for many miles around. The forest of several hundred acres, great tracts of pasture lands, and many miles of fences are being destroyed. Large herds of cattle were grazing in the swamps, and it is supposed that several head have perished. Others, in great terror, fled to the open fields adjoining in the greatest confusion. The surface of the earth is muck, which is burning three feet deep. The damage will amount to many thousand dollars. The flames run as high as the tallest pines and with great rapidity. Farmers are fighting the flames to keep them out of the woodlands. The farm house of William C. Sackett and those of one or two other men were saved with difficulty. Four hundred acres have already been burned over and the swamp covers 8,000 acres. The fire was started by a young man who ignited the leaves just for fun.

The President in Richmond.

RICHMOND, Va., October 21.—The special train conveying the presidential party to this city left Washington at 8 o'clock this morning. the president being accompanied by Secretaries Bayard, Endicott, Postmaster General Vilas, Private Secretary Lamont and a committee of Virginians, General W. C. Wickham, Colonel A. S. Buford and Dr. Holt. The train passed through Alexandria without stopping, and although a large crowd had assembled at the station, there was no demonstration. When the party reached Fredericksburg the rain had ceased and the sun had broken through the clouds. A brief stop was made in order that the executive and his advisers might shake hands with the citizens, who in large numbers had assembled at the station to pay their respects. A salute was fired and in response to calls of the multitude the president went out on the rear platform of his private car, and being introduced by General Wickham, held fast to the frame of the car with one hand and shook hands with those who passed by with the other.

Richmond was reached about 11.30 o'clock a. m.

Everything passed off most pleasantly until late this evening when the presidential party were leaving the Confederate Home. The veterans then resumed cannon firing and one of the guns prematurely exploded, tearing one man's arm off and breaking the arm of another.

WASHINGTON, October 21.—The special train from Richmond bearing the president and his companions reached Washington without accident or noteworthy incident this evening. The president expressed himself as having enjoyed his visit and was well pleased with the hearty welcome accorded him by the Virginians.

Emperor William's Health.

LONDON, Oct. 21.—Emperor William left Baden for Berlin at 6 o'clock last evening. Two doctors accompany him and have been with him almost constantly since October 13th. The emperor has been greatly enfeebled by an obstinate attack of diarrhœa, which his physicians have been unable to check, but he preserves his healthy appetite. He has recently been put on a strict regimen of light soup and chicken, a glass of old Burgundy between meals, and every hour is allowed a small glass of wine and a biscuit. The emperor's physicians have yielded to his eager desire to attend the chase in the Hartz mountains on October 27, believing that his presence there under certain restrictions would work less harm to their patient than to keep him chafing and fretting in Berlin. The Empress Augusta will remain at Baden some time longer, and will visit Coblentz before returning to Berlin.

Powderly Goes to Massachusetts.

PHILADELPHIA, October 22.—General Master Workman Powderly, of the Knights of Labor, who returned last night from Richmond, left to-day for Lawrence Mass., where he will to-morrow evening attend a meeting of district assembly No. 30. The purpose of his visit to Lawrence, it is said, is to prevent if possible the withdrawal of the assembly from the order of a number of locals which comprise district assembly No. 30. A monster street parade and mass meeting has been arranged for to-morrow night in honor of his return. The delegates from the Richmond convention and Powderly would not take part therein and this caused great disappointment among a number of local assemblies. It is expected that over 40,000 Knights of Labor will participate in the parade. A mass meeting will be held in the Academy of Music. It was expected that Powderly would be the principal speaker.

Major Ryan Dead.

PHILADELPHIA, October 22.—Major Jno. W. Ryan, of the state fencibles, died at an early hour this morning.

Major John W. Ryan was one of the best military men in the United States After serving gallantly through the war he returned home, and when the local military fever broke out in 1870 he was elected to command the State Fencibles, and old organization. Through his great efforts and wonderful skill as a drill master he very soon brought the Fencibles to the front and for years they were the crack military organization of Pennsylvania and the pride of Philadelphia. Major Ryan was a genial, accomplished gentleman, highly respected by all who knew him. He was an especial favorite in military circles. When the Fencibles were formed into three companies he was made major of the battalion. He was aged about 45 years.

Minister Cox Resigns.

WASHINGTON, October 20.—Minister Cox had a second interview with Secretary Bayard this morning, and indicated a desire to be relieved of his duties as United States Minister to Turkey. He was informed that he would not be required to return to Turkey, as the Charge d'Affairs. Mr. Pendleton King is regarded as fully competent to discharge the duties of the Ministry office until a successor to Mr. Cox can be appointed The formal resignation of the Minister has not yet been presented to the Department of State, but it is expected promptly upon his acceptance of the Congressional nomination, which, in view of his action this morning, is now believed to be beyond doubt.

The Municipal Convention.

READING, Pa, October 21.—At to-day's session of the municipal convention of Pennsylvania cities it was agreed to appoint a commission of one member from each city, charged with the duty of revising and classifying the laws of the state effecting cities of the third, fourth and fifth classes, so that a uniform system of municipal law may be made applicable to all cities of the same class, the commission to report to an adjourned meetin of the municipal convention to be held in Harrisburg, January 4, when the legislature will be in session.

Defaulter Bradley Sentenced.

CHICAGO, October 21.—F. J. Bradley, ex-manager of the Pullman palace car company, was taken before Judge Collins this morning, when he pleaded guilty to the charge of embezzlement. He expressed the wish to be sent to Joliet at once, as he was anxious to get out again and have the matter over with as soon as possible. Judge Collins sentenced him to five years in the penitentiary at Joliet. The necessary papers were ordered made out at once and Bradley was taken to Joliet on the noon train.

Will Flock by Themselves.

SEDALIA, Mo., October 21.—The resolution recently adopted by the general assembly of the Knights of Labor at Richmond, calling on cigar makers who are members of the international union and also of the Knights of Labor to choose which of the organizations they shall follow, created a great deal of comment in this city. All of the cigarmakers here are members of both orders and to a man will renounce allegiance to the Knights of Labor.

Briefs.

READING, October 22.—During the past few days fierce fires have been raging in the Blue Mountains and to night the reflection of the flames can be seen many miles. In consequence of the drouth the wood is universally dry and the flames make rapid progress, notwithstanding the fact that many farmers are fighting the fire to prevent its spread to the orchards and farm buildings. The loss thus far is estimated at least $35,000. There has been no loss of life, though many narrow escapes are reported.

NEW YORK, Oct. 21.—Ex-Minister Cox, in accepting the nomination of the united democracy for congress said his creed was a simple one—honesty, and that he followed democratic principles unflinchingly by the beacon lights set by Thomas Jefferson.

WASHINGTON, October 21.—A requisition was received from Governor Pattison this morning for William Meyers, alias Rudolph Michel, alias William Elliot, and Chief Justice Carter fixed the hearing for next Saturday morning. The prisoner is wanted in Dauphin county, Pa., to answer the charge of false pretenses.

PITTSBURG, October 21.—Mr. Blaine and party arrived at Brownsville this evening and was escorted to the hotel by a band where he held an informal reception. To-morrow he will visit the graves of his parents and sister. In the evening he will speak at the lyceum. On Saturday morning, in company with his sons, he will go to Washington where he will visit his alma mater.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 20.—Gen. Sheridan was to-day elected Commander-in-Chief of the military order of the Loyal Legion to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Gen. Hancock.

RALEIGH, N. C., October 20.—By an accident on the Spartansburg & Ashville Railroad to-day a number of passengers received serious and it may be fatal injuries.

No Cause for Alarm.

ST. PETERSBURG, Oct. 21.—The Journal de St. Petersburg says there is no real justification for the fall in Russian securities and the nervousness on the Bourse owing to the condition of the Bulgarian question. "The peace will not be disturbed," adds the paper, "as all the powers recognize Russia's rights. The crisis is localized to Bulgaria. There is no reason why the numerous questions connected therewith should not be peacefully settled The Bulgarian rulers know Russia's will. We hope they will recognize the necessities of the situation. The Journal is not aware of what means of action Russia will employ to make her prevail, but her moderation is an additional proof of her resolution to attain her ends. She has guarantees enough of her final success and it is not necessary for her to disturb herself and precipitate events."

Blaine at Pittsburgh.

PITTSBURGH, October 20.—James G. Blaine addressed 10,000 people on the tariff question at Exposition park this afternoon.

At the conclusion of his address Mr. Blaine was driven to the Monongahela house where he was joined by his son James G. Jr., and his wife. This evening was devoted to an informal reception. To-morrow Mr. Blaine leaves for a trip up the Monongahela river to his home at Brownsville. He expects to go to West Virginia on business and will return here on Friday, passing through the city on his way north.

MANHOOD

How Lost How Restored!

Just published, a new edition of Dr. Culverwell's Celebrated Essay on the radical cure of SPERMATORRHŒA or Seminal Weakness, Involuntary Seminal Losses, IMPOTENCY, Mental and Physical Incapacity, Impediments to Marriage, etc.; also CONSUMPTION, EPILEPSY and FITS, induced by self-indulgence, or sexual extravagance, &c.

The celebrated author, in his admirable essay, clearly demonstrates from a thirty years' successful practice, that the alarming consequences of self-abuse may be radically cured; pointing out a mode of cure at once simple, certain and effectual, by means of which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply.

CONQUEST OF MEXICO

Prescott's HISTORY of the CONQUEST of MEXICO. With a Preliminary View of the Ancient Mexican Civilization, and the Life of the Conqueror, Hernando Cortés. Illustrated Library Edition, in two volumes, small octavo. Price, $2.25. Popular Edition, two volumes in one, without illustrations, $1.25. Now ready.

Copyright. The expiration of copyright enables me now to present this great work to American readers at a popular price, yet in form worthy of the author, and worthy of the finest library. Its mechanical qualities are fairly equal to those of my best edition of "Guizot's History of France."

Whipple, the noted essayist and critic, says: "A history possessing the unity, variety, and interest of a magnificent poem. It deals with a series of facts and exhibits a gallery of characters, which to have invented would place its creator by the side of Homer; and which to realize and represent in the mode Mr. Prescott has done, required a rare degree of historical imagination."

Beyond ALL PRAISE. "This announcement is all that is needed. The work itself long ago passed beyond all praise. The thousands of people who were unable to secure it at former prices will be glad to avail themselves of the opportunity of doing so at a reduced rate."—Interior, Chicago, Ill.

"The work itself occupies too high a place among historical writings to need commendation."—The Mail, Toronto, Ontario.

Timely. "The enterprising Mr. Alden has chosen a most timely occasion for the reissue of this valuable work, and its excellent and convenient library form, its cheapness, and the widespread interest in Mexican matters that exists at present, will doubtless combine to give it an appreciative reception."—The Week, Toronto, Ontario.

"The volume before us is a very creditable piece of work mechanically, and puts Prescott's charming histories within the reach of the average pocket book."—Evangelist, St. Louis, Mo.

Fascinating. "This history has a fascinating interest, and is so well known as to need no praise."—Christian Secretary, Hartford, Conn.

"Especially interesting at this time. Is published in two handsome volumes, and like all Mr. Alden's publications is sold at an astonishingly low price."—Advertiser, Detroit, Mich.

A Noble Work; judiciously and admirably executed; rich with the results of learning easily and gracefully worn; imbued everywhere with a conscientious love of the truth, and controlled by that unerring good sense without which genius leads astray with its false lights, and learning encumbers with its heavy panoply. It will win the literary voluptuary to its pages by the attractiveness of its subject and the flowing ease of its style; and the historical student will do honor to the extent and variety of the research which it displays. It will take its place among those enduring productions of the human mind which age cannot stale and custom cannot wither.—G. S. HILLARD.

FERDINAND AND ISABELLA. HISTORY of the REIGN of Ferdinand and Isabella, the Catholic. By WILLIAM H. PRESCOTT. Illustrated Library Edition, in two volumes, small octavo, including portraits and other illustrations. Fine heavy paper, fine cloth, gilt tops. Price, $2.25. Popular Edition, from the same plates, but without illustrations, the two volumes in one. Price, $1.25. Now ready.

"Prescott had the genius to invest the dry facts of history with the charms of fiction; and yet he never sacrifices truth to the graces of style."—WESTLAKE.

"It is one of the most pleasing as well as most valuable contributions that have been made to modern history; it is the only one that gives us a faithful and sufficient picture of a period so momentous as the latter half of the fifteenth century."—London Athenæum.

"One of the finest histories of modern times, written by an author of rare felicity of diction, fervor of imagination, accuracy of statement, and exquisite beauty of style. Every one who reads at all should read Prescott."—Presbyterian, Philadelphia, Pa.

Rev W. H. H. Snyder.

The following, which will be of interest to the Reformed congregation of this place, is from the Harrisburg Patriot:

HARRISBURG, Oct. 18, 1886.

To the Vestry of the Reformed Salem Church:

DEAR BRETHREN:—Notwithstanding a majority of the members of the congregation, at a meeting held on last Monday evening, October 18, 1886, refused to accept my resignation, and as said action was then referred to the Vestry, I take occasion to inform you that in view of all the circumstances it is my earnest wish to be relieved of my pastorate, with the view of changing my field of labor to Bellefonte, Pa., and again ask you to unite with me in requesting the Lancaster Classis to dissolve the pastoral relation. Yours in Christian bonds,

W. H. H. SNYDER.

After the reading of the above the following resolution was unanimously adopted:

Resolved, That in accordance with the wishes of our pastor, we hereby accept his resignation, the same to take effect on the 1st of December, 1886, and unite with him in requesting the Lancaster Classis to dissolve the pastoral relation regretting that he feels constrained by circumstances to sever a relation which has existed for so long a period, and trusting that he may be as abundantly blessed in his new pastorate, as the one he is about to vacate.

A Bear Story.

Our friend, Mr. Joe W. Furey, relates the following in Wednesday's issue of Lock Haven Democrat:

"On Saturday afternoon, near Beech Creek, a bear was seen taking a stroll across the fields of Mr. Will Bechdel. His capture was decided upon but the guns of the parties were either "keeping lent" or out of gear. Harry Boas took the lead, armed with rocks and accompanied by his faithful dog. The bear not relishing being followed in that way, backed up against a tree on his hind feet ready to arbitrate the case. The dog, considering discretion better than valor, retreated, and the master, not to be outdone, unloaded his stones and kept a little ahead of the dog, imagining the bear on his heels. After considerable running the dog got ahead, and the master, not hearing a racket behind, slackened up and felt relieved, while the bear pursued his tramp unmolested out of the neighborhood."

Blaine on Patton.

While James G. Blaine was in Lewistown, the county seat of Mifflin county, on Tuesday, the 18th, he took occasion to express himself in the following language regarding Hon. John Patton, the Republican candidate for Congress in the Twentieth district:

Without pausing to inquire as to what may be the politics of this district, I say that if its inhabitants look to their own prosperity and that of their State they will send to the Congress of the United States, a true and tried friend of the Protective system, and I know, for I can speak from personal knowledge, that in John Patton you have that man. [Cheers.] I have known him as long as the most of you, am familiar with his course in Congress, and, addressing my remarks to Protection Democrats as well as to the Protection Republicans, I repeat that regardless of any other issue it is your paramount duty, a duty prompted by a sense of individual self interest, to send him to Congress. He is an honest, honorable, true friend of the Protective system, and will conscientiously represent the interests of this district on that question. [Cheers.]

Carrier Pigeons.

A few days ago Mr. J. D. Whiteman sent off four or five carrier pigeons which he had obtained of Mr. James Work, of No. 1111 West Lehigh Avenue, Philadelphia. A furious storm raged in and about Philadelphia at the time and all but one of the pigeons lost their way and have been shot or captured by some one. The oldest pigeon reached home after a day's flight, whereas, under favorable conditions, the flight should have been made in five hours. Mr. Whiteman informs us that if these pigeons have been captured and are let loose within the next two years they will surely find their way home.

Window Glass Manufacturers' Syndicate.

The preliminary steps were taken at Pittsburgh this week to establish a window glass manufacturers' syndicate. All manufacturers in Pittsburgh and the West are eligible to membership. The plan submitted contemplates forming an organization or stock company into which every member shall pay $100 per pot, said money to be forfeited if such member violates any of the rules, such as selling under the established price. The syndicate is to buy glass of firms needing money at a fixed price; notice of price fixed is to be sent to manufacturers in the other districts, and if prices are cut by them, the association is to sell in their market at such prices as will make their territory unprofitable to them. The agreement is to become binding when 95 per cent. of the manufacturers sign it, and a committee is to further develop the plan with the aid of a competent attorney, and report to a meeting to be called in the near future.

A Malicious Falsehood

Very few people read the Watchman Friday morning and consequently it was almost noon before they saw the silly falsehood asserting that Blaine will not be in town next Wednesday. Of course, everybody will understand that the Watchman editor is convulsed with anger because Blaine came to the State to help Beaver and consequently he desires to prevent the people of this county giving Blaine a rousing reception. Blaine will positively be here, perhaps as early as 10 o'clock a. m. Be in town by that time anyway. Show the Watchman that it cannot hoodwink the people with falsehoods. Give Blaine the greatest reception ever given any man by the people of Centre county.

—Wm. C. Miller was buried Thursday morning at 10 o'clock, the funeral services occurring at the residence of Mr. Charles Miller, his son, in this place. Dev. D. S. Monroe, D. D., officiated and Mr. C. E. Schaffer and a competent choir rendered the music. Dr. Monroe's address was exceedingly impressive and appropriate.

—On Wednesday Miss Helen Reynolds, daughter of Hon. Samuel H. Reynolds, of Lancaster, was married to Mr. Frank Harris, of Providence, R. I. The ceremony occurred in the Episcopal church, Rev. C. F. Knight, D. D., officiating. Among the maids of honor was Miss Kate Jackson, of this place, and Mr. W. Fred Reynolds officiated as an usher. The bride is a niece of Major Wm. F. and Messrs. Elisha and Thomas Reynolds of this place. She is a very pleasing young lady, having frequently visited here. The wedding was a brilliant event, George W. Childs, A. J. Drexel and B. K. Jamison, of Philadelphia, being among the distinguished guests. The bride was dressed in white satin, entrain, with pearl trimmings. After the wedding there was a handsome reception lasting two hours. The wedding party went to New York City in a special car. They received numerous costly presents.

—The Pennsylvania Railroad Company has just place orders of 2000 additional freight cars. Of these 400 will be constructed at the Altoona shops, 200 will be built by the Berwick Company, 200 by the Allison Works, of Philadelphia; 200 by the Carlisle Works, and 200 by Pardee & Co., of Watsontown. The balance will be built by other concerns in the State. The Baltimore and Ohio has placed orders for 1000 cars with the car works at Milton, Pa., and the Pittsburgh and Western has ordered 2000 freight cars.

Wreck on the Buffalo Run R. R.

On Thursday evening some boys playing on a couple of cars on the Buffalo Run Railroad turned the brakes and the two cars started down grade. Near the junction of the road with the Bald Eagle the cars run into four other cars which were on the track and the result was quite a wreck which has not yet been cleared away. The engine on the Buffalo Run R. R. was compelled to go all the way to Scotia for water Thursday as it could not approach the tank in this direction.

—Mr. W. A. Brown, of Spring Mills, was in Bellefonte Thursday and departed on the 9 32 train for Williamsport, where he expects to locate. Mr. Brown is a musician, a composer of music and a music dealer. He organized the Spring Mills band and brought it to a high degree of perfection. He is besides a first class young gentleman. We understand that he will open a music store in Williamsport and also associate himself with the famous Repasz Band.

—In the common council in Philadelphia Thursday evening the members pelted each other with paper wads, upset one another on the floor and indulged in general disorder. The Times says it was disgraceful. The Times should not be too severe; even men are only boys grown large and they will be boys once in a while.

—If the young lady who called at the postoffice on Friday and inquired for a $5 bill which she lost will call again the gentleman of whom she made the inquiry at that time can inform her where she can recover the aforesaid money.

Good Results in Every Case.

D. A. Bradford, wholesale paper dealer of Chattanooga, Tenn, writes, that he was seriously afflicted with a severe cold that settled on his lungs: had tried many remedies without benefit. Being induced to try Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, did so and was entirely cured by use of a few bottles. Since which time he has used it in his family for all coughs and colds with the best results. This is the experience of thousands whose lives have been saved by this wonderful Discovery.

—As an example of the size of the average Democratic meeting, we are informed that at such a gathering in Georges Valley there was only one man present who seemed willing to take any part in the business. Consequently, he made the motions, seconded them and put them to the meeting. Whether anyone except himself voted we are not informed, but suppose that Major Jackson L. Spangler, who was present as a speaker, helped him to vote "aye."

I take pleasure in stating that I have known Ely's Cream Balm for more than fifty years, and have sold it during that time both in Binghamton and Montrose. I consider it the safest and best catarrh remedy in the market.—S. J. Sparkes, Druggist, Montrose, Pa.

I suffered for more than ten years with that dreadful disease catarrh, and used every available medicine which was recommended to me. I cannot thank you enough for the relief which your Cream Balm has afforded me.—Emanuel Meyers, Winfield L. I.

—The decision of the Supreme Court in the South Penn case is very favorably received by our citizens, many of whom believe that it will eventually lead to the extenston of the Beech Creek Railroad to this place.

An End to Bone Scraping.

Edward Shepherd, of Harrisburg, Ill., says: "Having received so much benefit from Electric Bitters, I feel it my duty to let suffering humanity know it. Have had a running sore on my leg for eight years: my doctors told me I would have to have the bone scraped or leg amputated. I used instead three bottles of Electric Bitters and seven boxes Bucklen's Arnica Salve, and my leg is now sound and well."

Electric Bitters are sold at fifty cents a bottle, and Bucklen's Arnica Salve at 25c. per box by J. Zeller & Son.

—There was a Democratic meeting at Snow Shoe on Wednesday evening which was chiefly remarkable for its very small attendance, the number of Democratic voters not exceeding seventy-five. Overseer Schofield was one of the orators and a man from Philadelphia also delivered an address. A few Republicans who were present were much amused by the lack of enthusiasm.

How's Your Liver?

Is the Oriental salutation, knowing that good health cannot exist without a healthy Liver. When the Liver is torpid the Bowels are sluggish and constipated, the food lies in the stomach undigested, poisoning the blood; frequent headache ensues; a feeling of lassitude, despondency and nervousness indicate how the whole system is deranged. Simmons Liver Regulator has been the means of restoring more people to health and happiness by giving them a healthy Liver than any agency known on earth. It acts with extraordinary power and efficacy.

—Steam heat is being put in the law office of the Dale Brothers. This will be an admirable equipment for expert legal practice, and if they don't furnish counsel hot, boiling, double-refined and running over it wont be because a polar wave prevents them.

—By the way, we almost forgot to mention it; but, have you seen Mr. I. M. Harvey's new milk wagon? It's a daisy now, for sure. An all tin top, handsomely painted, completely furnished inside with cans, etc., and for convenience and comfort in the cold winter days, a little stove is arranged to cast its glowing heat and make cheerful the little apartment. Even the milk, with which he supplies his customers, is so bewitched by the "new beauty," as to cream better and taste sweeter.

Religious Services.

The day of rest was a pleasant one and the churches contained fair-sized congregations. In the morning Rev. J. O. Davis chose for the text of his discourse the words from Matthew 22:37-39 -

Jesus said unto him, Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, with all thy soul and with all thy mind.

This is the first and great commandment.

And the second is like unto it, Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself.

The speaker described what it is to love God with the heart; a yet higher affection is to love with the soul, and to love with all the mind includes a concentration and devotion of all our powers of affection. To love our neighbor as ourselves is a corollary of love to God, a natural deduction therefrom. It does not follow that we must choose him as a companion, but be ready at all times to do him good. If the love of God is in the heart it will be reflected in the life just as the clear water of the stream reflects the foliage of the trees that grow along its banks.

In the evening Rev. Mr. Davis read for his text the first seven verses of the 12th chapter of II Samuel, the account of the visit of the Prophet Nathan to King David, and the parable which he related to David of the rich man's unjust action in taking a lamb from his poor neighbor. David's indignant declaration that "the man that hath done this thing shall surely die" was followed by Nathan's crushing sentence, "Thou art the man." Then followed Nathan's further condemnation of the conscience-sricken king, which the speaker forcibly described, together with sufficient reference to the King's great and only sin of causing Uriah's death and his marriage with the beautiful Bathsheba, the death of his child and the intense sorrow which it caused the King. In the depth of his woe he wrote the 51st Psalm and as a public penance dedicated it to the chief musician. When his sin was pardoned he wrote Psalm 32.

Perhaps we do not commit a sin like this of David, or one which brings so much misery into the world as does the drunkard who lies in the gutter. But we should not consider ourselves so much better than the latter. Think of the bitter trials he has gone through to resist that sin. It is no special credit to ourselves if we, not having the appetite to drink, do not commit the sin of drunkenness. The man who triumphs over his sin is the one who has strength of character. Other sins, such as anger, gluttony, sloth, etc., are as evil in the sight of God.

In the Y. M. C. A. hall there was an interesting meeting at 4 o'clock p. m. John Olewine was the leader and after the usual opening exercises and a brief consideration of the stated subject, "Faith's Victories," several gentlemen who had attended the convention in Altoona related their impressions of that gathering.

Rev. Wm. Laurie, D D. in the Presbyterian church, delivered two excellent sermons Sunday. His evening text was based on the words, "And the ark of God was taken."

Rev. D. S. Monroe, D. D., preached eloquently in the morning on "Christian Giving," taking as a basis numerous Scripture texts bearing on this topic. His evening text was that familiar one, "Come unto Me all ye that labor and are heavy-laden, and I will give you rest."

Rev. Chas. T. Steck, of the Lutheran church, also favored his congregations with masterly discourses. His text in the morning was from Matthew 6-26:

Behold the fowls of the air; for they sow not, neither do they reap, nor gather into barns; yet your heavenly Father feedeth them. Are ye not much better than they?

Building Progress.

We traveled along Bishop street this morning purposely to see the progress made on the two new structures on that street—the Roman Catholic church edifice and the new school house. The former is the most solid and massive stone structure in this vicinity. Although constant work is in progress on it the advancement is not so noticeable because of the substantial and thorough character of the work. It will be a building of which the town may well be proud.

Further up the street the public school building, under the direction of Harry Yerger, has made amazing progress. The walls are up almost to their greatest height and will soon be ready for the roof. There are fourteen windows upstairs and down on both sides of the building. In front there is a wide entrance and two pairs of windows on each side of that. The exterior seems to be arranged to give abundant light.

We are informed that the foundations for the new glass works building are being erected and the work on the building proper will begin next week. It will be frame and double the capacity of the present structure.

—What gives rise to so many rumors of murders occurring in Philipsburg? During the past week everybody has been inquiring about them, and people seem disposed to compell us to announce such a tragic affair in that pretentious place despite the fact that the inhabitants of the town know nothing of it. Tell you what, Philipsburg is lively enough in reality without attributing to her anything so very serious.

BLAINE

Bellefonte's Great Greeting to the Statesman from Maine.

The committee to escort James G Blaine to this place proceeded to Altoona on the 5.20 p. m. train Tuesday. It was composed of E. C. Humes, chairman, Judge John Irwin, Jr., Robert Valentine, D. S. Keller, Lawrence L. Brown, Dr. E. W. Hale, Daniel Rhoads, A. G. Curtin, Jr., and Wilbur F. Malin.

The delegation from Williamsport was in charge of Dr. Doane and that from Lock Haven under J. B. G. Kinsloe. There were about 40 belonging to the latter. The Williamsporters went to the Brockerhoff House.

The decorations all along High street were handsome. These included the Republican office, McCalmonts & Co's, the Bush House, the room above the Watchman office. Valentine Smith's and J. C. Brachbill's business places, Valentines' stores, James Harris & Co., hardware, Williams Bros., F. C. Richards, S. A. Stover's, the Benner residence as well as several other private residences.

It was 2 o'clock when the special train containing Mr. Blaine and party arrived in town, they having made the run from Tyrone in 55 minutes.

At that time 5,000 people thronged the streets, and when the distinguished party entered the six carriages and took their way up High street, they were greeted by the applause of the populace.

MR. BLAINE'S SPEECH.

When Mr. Blaine and the party with him had taken their places on the platform, Col. Hastings introduced Mr. Blaine as the idol of the Republican party, the foremost statesman in the Union.

Mr. Blaine said it seemed a work of supererogation to come into Pennsylvania to speak for General Beaver or for a protective tariff, but that was just what he came here to do. (Great cheering.) He asked the Republicans of the state to register their will in favor of this great principle, and as Pennsylvania would vote all would follow. He personally knows the candidate for Congress of this district. He had admired Gen. Patton's career in congress and asked the voters after they have voted for Gen. Beaver, also to vote for General Patton. (Loud cheers for Beaver.)

After a pause, he said, "You in Pennsylvania are too rich. Besides so much coal, you have iron and oil and have set the world on fire with natural gas (Laughter and cries of good, good.) If you had to work as hard as we do in Maine you would more fully appreciate the blessings of protection. That was all he had to say, and he asked the voters to do their entire duty. He spoke only ten minutes, and then the entire party again entered the carriages. On the way to the train Mr. Blaine called on Gov. Curtin,

NOTES.

P. G. Meek managed to almost incite a riot by the insulting posters he put in the windows of his office. We, however, ask all the noble nail workers and others who naturally are excited at this time not to pay any attention to his actions, as Rebel politics is his mania.

Four windows of the Brockerhoff House were decorated. Mrs. McMillen is an intense and earnest Republican and she indulged in this enthusiasm. Mrs. McMillen's father was a delegate to the Chicago convention that nominated Blaine.

There were five bands in the parade.

The Nail Workers' Club never looked better than at this time and every man will vote for Beaver.

Mishap to a Hunting Party.

W. H. Wilkinson, Frank Grice, Harry Valentine, 'Squire Samuel Foster and Ed. Foster went on a hunting expedition Wednesday. They hitched their team of horses along Bald Eagle creek about two miles above Unionville and proceeded unto the woods in search of game. The horses were tied to a post with a strong rope and thought to be perfectly secure. They had gone not over four hundred yards and were shooting birds pretty rapidly and having splendid luck when one of them returned to the wagon. What was his amazement to find that it had disappeared, the horses having broken loose and run away. The party went in search of the team and found them about a half a mile distant, one of the horses having plunged into a hole. One of the legs of the horse was broken and the tongue of the wagon had also snapped in two. The articles in the wagon were scattered all along the road.

Col. Wilkinson viewed the wreck and said in melancholy tones: "I can't stand this, boys," and started off home, walking the entire distance. The others went to the nearest telephone and informed Garman's to whom the horses belonged and in two hours Al. was there in a carriage and brought them all home.

—Miss Puella E. Dornblaser, of Mackeyville, Clinton county, Pa., is in Minneapolis, Minn., where she represents this county and Clinton in the National Convention of the W. C. T. U. She sends us a copy of the Daily Union Signal containing the annual address of Frances E. Willard, President of the National W. C. T. U. The address is even longer than a President's annual message and evinces Miss Willard's well known ability and scholarship.

Frightful Runaway.

This morning about 8.15 o'clock a frightful runaway occurred on West High street. Mr. Jonathan Miller was driving Erhard & Shuey's horse hitched to the delivery wagon, along the road near Half Moon hill, when the wagon tilted forward, throwing the driver on the shafts. There he clung maintaining fast hold on the lines while the horse ran rapidly east along High street toward the bridge. The wagon grazed the centre support of the bridge and Mr. Miller fell from the shafts under the horse. People who saw the frightful occurrence thought that Mr. Miller would be killed. The horse turned in toward Valentines' stores and there the wagon came in contact with one of the rear wheels of Valentines' delivery wagon, damaging it slightly. Fortunately, at this point the horse turned toward the store where it was accustomed to stop and was easily brought to a standstill. Everybody was surprised and pleased to see that Mr. Miller was not injured at all, but joined with the other men in repairing damages which were really inconsiderable, considering the circumstances.

—The Presbyterian pastors in the towns of the State are made the recipients of a pleading communication from some fellow who is afraid to give his own name, but who signs himself "A Presbyterian," and who is interested in the political success of J. Simpson Africa, the Democratic candidate for Secretary of Internal Affairs. The writer says that "In the main his sympathy is with the Republican ticket," but he wants his dear friend Africa elected because he is "a man of honor, honesty, capability and deep religious conviction." The writer obligingly sends along with the communication "a few pasters," or stickers, with the name of Mr. Africa on, "trusting that you and your congregation may assist in accomplishing the effort being made in his behalf." It seems to us that it is rather small work to try to play upon the earnest religious sentiments of a class of devout men—especially by a person afraid to give his own name—and we are glad that at least one instance it failed of its object. The communication and the stickers are a dead loss either to the campaign committee or Mr. Africa, and the minister in question wrote back, "I am an Asiatic Republican, not an African."

Rodgers' Water Gauge.

The above gauge is in use on both of the boilers at the water works. It is an invention of Mr. George Rodgers of this place and has been in use at the works of the Bellefonte Nail Company for eight months or longer. Mr. Sam Ryan says it is the best gauge he has ever used and can find no fault at all with it. It does not get filled up as do other kinds of gauges, but exhausts the steam readily. Many gauges used at the water works have had to be repacked almost weekly. Ryan says that Rodgers' water guage does not require repacking oftener than once a year. In brief, the gauge is faultless, and should be universally used.

At Pleasant Gap.

Mr. Henry Noll, aged about 83 years, died very suddenly on Saturday last. He was apparently enjoying his usual health, and had been working during the morning. When he came in he sat down a few moments when he suddenly fell forward and expired.

Soon after this event Mr. Samuel Noll, a brother of Henry and about two years younger, fell from a hay mow, dislocating his shoulder. He is reviving from the shock. The two events happening so close together to persons who were members of the same family, caused much excitement. Mr. Samuel Noll is the father of John Noll, of this place.

The funeral of Mr. Henry Noll occurred at 10 o'clock Monday morning.

Distinguished Visitors.

Among the gentlemen who visited Bellefonte Monday and took quarters at the Bush House while here are Messrs. B. K. Jamison, William Stewart, Samuel Dickson, R. Boyer, Jones Wister and C. A. Hart, all of Philadelphia, and Mr. William Beesor, of Uniontown. All of these gentlemen are interested in the Valentine Ore and Land Association and came to inspect the progress being made on the furnace as well as to examine the proposed route for the branch railroad to be built by them.

Easily Extinguished.

Mr. William Camp's furniture store was the scene of some excitement Friday evening. A lamp in the store exploded or was upset and for a few minutes the flames blazed up threateningly. A mattress was the only article damaged, the flames being promptly extinguished.

—The ladies of the United Brethren church will serve to the hungry and thirsty a turkey dinner and an oyster supper on election day. The place where these delicious delicacies and palatable substantials will be served will be in the store-room next to Dr. Miles Kirk's drug store. The ladies of the United Brethren church want money to repair their church building. It is literally falling about their ears and is not at all inviting as a place in which to conduct their services. Then, give them your help. Let there be a mighty throng to partake of the well cooked and excellently seasoned turkeys, etcetera, and also go to their oyster supper. Eat, drink and be merry in a good cause.

—Why cannot Bellefonte have a mail box at the station? In many other places less important than Bellefonte there is such a convenience. As it is, people who desire to put a letter in the mail after the hour for mailing such letters at the postoffice must wait until the train arrives even if it be an hour late, or else trouble some other person similarly situated to take charge of the mail matter for them. In some towns there is a man whose business it is to take the mail matter from the box and give it to the mail agent; in others the agent, himself, jumps from the car and gets the mail. This would be much more convenient to all than the present way. Under the present arrangement the agent must take the mail matter, a piece at a time; in the way we propose he could take it all at once and it would be less trouble to him.

—From Saturday's Johnstown Tribune: "It is understood that the Westmoreland & Cambria Natural Gas Company is contemplating an extension of its pipe line from this city to Altoona. A gentleman who seems to know what he talks about said recently that if the Gas Company found their supply at Grapeville more than sufficient for all present and probable future demands at Johnstown, it would at once begin negotiations for the extension of its line to Altoona. There seems to be no doubt about the sufficiency of the supply, therefore it is presumed our sister city will within a few months be furnished with the new fuel for use in her shops and dwellings."

—On Saturday morning a terrible accident occurred on the Cresson and Clearfield railroad, between Coalport and Cresson. The mail train was making its regular trip when the engine left the track at a place called Fallen Timber and went down a seven-foot embankment. Fireman Frank Hatfield was scalded to death and Engineer Harry Hibbs was painfully though not fatally scalded. The cars did not cave the track and no other person was injured. Some evil-disposed person had wedged a spike between the rails for the purpose of wrecking the train. Two lumbermen were arrested.

—We are unalterably opposed to the enactment of laws that propose by license, taxing or otherwise to regulate the drink traffic, because they provide for its continuance, and afford no protection against its ravages. We hold that the proper attitude of Christians toward this traffic is one of uncompromising opposition, and, while we do not presume to dictate to our people as to their political affiliations, we do express our opinion that they should not permit themselves to be controlled by party organizations that are managed in the interests of the liquor traffic.—General Conference of the M. E Church, May, 1884.

—The Red Book as usual makes its appearance just when wanted, and the State edition this year abounds with statistical information of the character now most in demand. The little publication has become the standard political text-book, and not only is it of unquestioned value as an authority upon election results, but is a model of clean and most artistic typography. As of old it is sent without money and without price by inclosing stamp to C. K. Lord, Baltimore, Md.

Meeting at Howard.

HOWARD, PA., Oct. 27, 1886.

Mr. Editor: The Republican mass meeting which was held here on Tuesday night, was a grand success, notwithstanding the inclemency of the weather. The Howard band was out in full array and rendered some of their choicest selections of music. Owing to the unfavorable condition of the weather it was necessary that the meeting be held in Lucas & Bros. hall which was filled to its utmost capacity with enthusiastic and attentive listeners. The meeting was called to order by Chairman H. T. Lucas. The following officers were elected: B. F. Holter, President; W. H. Neff, Sr., vice President; T. A. Lucas, and John Long, Secretaries. President Holter then introduced to the audience Mr. E. C. Chambers, of Bellefonte, who although unexpectedly called upon to address the meeting, delivered a short but excellent speech. Mr. J. G. Love, our worthy candidate for legislator; was then introduced, who most ably and eloquently discussed all the important issues of the campaign.

Mr. Love was frequently and vigorously applauded throughout his whole speech. At the close of Mr. Love's address the band rendered several beautiful pieces of music which were much appreciated. The meeting was then adjourned by President Holter.

F. H. LUCAS,
JNO. M. LOVE,
Secretaries.

By the Seashore.

A POEM BY A TWELVE-YEAR OLD GIRL.

I long to go to the wild seashore,
And here the grand old ocean roar,
And watch the waves as they sport and pla
Along the beach in their fierce, wild way

I long to go where the children stray,
On the sandy shore on a summer day,
And watched the sea gulls sailing low—
Oh, to the seashore I long to go.

I long to stray on the breeze-swept beach,
And view the tides as they shoreward reach,
And gather the shells they bring to me,
The beautiful gifts of a stormy sea.

I long to watch the grand ships go
Out to sea with their sails like snow;
But alas! dear sea, I may view thee no more,
Though I love to wander by thy shore.
